GOVERNMENT HAS CONTROL

Takes Charge of Yellow Fever Situation in New Orleans.

FUNDS ARE RAISED

Residents of Stricken City Subscribe $250,000 to Aid in Federal Work.

PHYSICIANS RECEIVE ORDERS

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Active control of the yellow fever situation in New Orleans by the United States public health and marine hospital service will begin immediately. Orders to that effect were wired tonight to Surgeon J. H. White, the marine hospital officer on duty in that city.

These orders followed the receipt from Dr. White, during the day, of several telegrams which showed the citizens of New Orleans had promised their hearty and unrestricted co-operation in the work to be undertaken by the general government, and would meet certain financial requirements imposed by the marine hospital service as a preliminary to assuming the responsibility.

Anticipating this outcome of the case, Dr. White already has determined on tentative plans. The city will be divided into wards, each to be placed in charge of a responsible and experienced surgeon of the marine hospital service, who will have absolute control. Already Surgeon General Wyman had given directions to a number of marine hospital surgeons to proceed to New Orleans for assignment to work under Dr. White. These are all officers who have had experience in dealing with yellow fever epidemics.

Eight More Deaths.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 6.—The yellow fever situation here up to 6 p. m. was as follows:

Deaths, today, 8.
New cases, 28.
New sub-foci, 2.
Total deaths, 195.
Total cases, 533.
Total sub-foci, 93.

The fever report today is interpreted by the authorities here as encouraging, particularly as there were only two new sub-foci, one uptown and one downtown. It is estimated there are now 233 cases under treatment.

The Marine hospital service will assume control of the situation tomorrow. The conditions precedent to its assumption—that the citizens of New Orleans pledge themselves to put up $250,000 to defray the cost of labor and material—has been met. President Roosevelt and Surgeon General Wyman have been wired by the citizens' committee of New Orleans that all funds the service may require outside of its own stated expenditure will be supplied by the people of the city. This action was taken at noon at a special meeting of the finance committee.

Wyman Asks for Money.

The action today was to follow out the suggestions and give the information asked by Surgeon General Wyman in the following telegram received by Surgeon White yesterday morning:

Surgeon White, New Orleans:

In your telegram of August 4, you state that the citizens have raised a large fund and promise to raise more, though amount is not definitely settled. It is very important this matter should be settled before definite action can be taken. Your estimate in second telegram of August 4 makes total expenses for eradication at $1,500 to $2,000 a day. You don't say whether this amount is expected of the service. Bureau estimate for 40 officers mentioned by you as being required would be about $500 a day. The epidemic fund will not stand short of $1,500 to $2,000 a day. This is absolute. Bureau would be willing to give you all the medical officers necessary, but the labor and materials should be furnished by the city, as has been done before. Wire promptly whether this arrangement can be effected, that I may give my opinion to the president. Attention should be called to the fact that the government is now maintaining detention camps in the town of New Orleans and expenses must be met for interstate measures. Rush answer.

WYMAN.

The citizens committee has addressed the following appeal to the citizens of New Orleans:

Appeal to People.

We respectfully ask your earnest attention to the telegram from Surgeon General Wyman of the United States public health and marine hospital service, in which are stated the conditions under which the service will assume control of the fever situation. As immediate action was imperative Mayor Behrman agreed at once to these conditions and in your behalf we gave the pledge that you would contribute the funds which might be required in the prosecution of the fight. The committee has now in hand about $75,000. A very much larger sum than this will be needed and we should be able in a few days to place at the command of the Federal authorities at least $250,000. The state and city can be counted on to do their demand, but the individual citizen must do his. The people of New Orleans in times of emergency have never faltered or failed and we appeal to you to indorse and redeem the pledge made by us in your behalf. Not one dollar of the funds contributed will be spent except under the direction of the United States public health and marine hospital service.

Surgeon White returned today from Gulfport and Ocean Springs, where he had gone to arrange for the improving of the camp at Fountainbleau, on the Louisville & Nashville road, and stated that he would probably not establish any camp on the Mississippi coast in view of the attitude of the people of Ocean Springs and Governor Vardaman's expressed determination to abide by their wishes. The camps at Slidell and Wyman will be enlarged to accommodate such travel as would have gone over to a camp on the Mississippi coast.

President is Thanked.

OYSTER BAY, Aug. 6.—For his prompt action in extending government aid to the citizens of New Orleans, and of the state of Louisiana in fighting the epidemic of yellow fever, President Roosevelt today received the thanks of the citizens' committee in the form of the following telegram:

The President,
Oyster Bay, N. Y.

We heartily thank you for your prompt

AN ARMY OF HALF MILLION

Japan Has 430,000 Infantry and 1,600 Guns Before the Russians.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

LIDIAPUDZE, MANCHURIA, Aug. 6.—The Japanese have concentrated in Manchuria in front of the Russian armies 430,000 infantry with 1,600 cannon. This is exclusive of the detachment of Gen. Hazkawa, commander of the forces in Korea, and a special detachment, the destination of which is not known. The weather is good and the roads are drying up.

PARROT DIES WITH HIM

Boston Florist Passes Away and Bird Is Chloroformed as He Requested.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

BOSTON, MASS., Aug. 6.—When John Slater Richards, the Brookline hermit horticulturist, known to Boston's society people because of the rare flowers he cultivated for them, was buried today his 65-year-old parrot, "Tommy," that had been the old man's sole company for many years, was chloroformed.

In a will "Uncle Dick," as Mr. Richards was generally known, left $10,000 to a distant relative for the care of the bird, but as this relative died over a year ago, he afterward made a new will requesting the parrot be mercifully killed when its master died.

For many years "Uncle Dick" has had his burial place in the Walnut Hill cemetery marked by a pink granite shaft fully lettered with a space left for the insertion of the date of his death.

FEUD AT CAMP MEETING

Negroes Fall Out Over a Game of Craps, Pull Revolvers and Two Die.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

SMYRNA, DEL., Aug. 6.—An early-morning riot today among negroes at Friendship campmeeting, near Clayton, resulted in the death of George Jackson of Middletown, who was shot through the heart, and John Pierce of Mount Pleasant, who received a bullet in the back. William Guy was seriously wounded.

According to Guy, the negroes were shooting craps on the Delaware & Chesapeake railroad, close to the campmeeting grounds. A dispute arose and revolvers were brought into play. When officers of the campmeeting reached the battle ground they found Jackson dead. Pierce was removed to Clayton, where he died tonight.

FLAMES AT ORBISONIA BURN SIXTEEN HOUSES

Mountain Town Visited With Fire Which Cleans Out Business Portion. Loss $50,000.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ALTOONA, PA., Aug. 6.—Fire which originated about 2 o'clock this morning in the warehouse of the general store of Cohn Brothers at Orbisonia, spread with remarkable rapidity and before it had burned itself out had consumed 16 buildings.

The conflagration destroyed a whole block, included in which was the postoffice, a number of stores and the Ashland hotel. Lack of fire fighting apparatus gave the flames full sweep, the townspeople who were aroused by the fire looking on helpless.

Among the more important losses are the following: Cohn Brothers, general store; Ashland hotel and livery, Mrs. Bollinger's residence, S. D. Nevill's barber shop, J. J. Rose's meat market, Wesley Ott's grocery store, H. L. Norris' saddlery, Wesley Broadbeck's meat market, postoffice building, George Hicks' confectionery, S. S. Cunningham's general store and the residence of Supt. Carter of the Rock Hill Furnace Co.

The loss in each instance is complete, not a thing being saved. It is estimated that the aggregate loss will amount to $50,000, partly covered by insurance.

WALLACE IS AFTER MOORE

Superintendent Tells Why There Is Friction in the Department.

EAST END GAMBLING

Says Director Knew About the Station Street House and Did Not Order Raid.

CHARGES LACK OF BACKBONE

Police Superintendent Alexander Wallace and Harry Moore, director of the department of public safety, are not working in harmony. The feeling between the men is intense and the retirement of either from public life would not be surprising. Wallace has no hesitancy in giving some of the reasons for the friction.

Mayor William B. Hays stands with the police superintendent, so it is not hard to guess who will do the retiring. Men familiar with conditions in the department say Moore would rather quit than have Wallace continue as superintendent of police. It is also known Wallace could have the directorship, but has said he would not have it. He wants to remain at the head of the police bureau and be superintendent in fact as well as in name.

Friends of Wallace say there are many causes for the friction and the superintendent does not hesitate to speak of some of them. He compains of the director repeatedly charging all of the faults of the department to the superintendent of police.

Moore and East End Gambling.

"There has been a good deal of talk about the granting of gambling privileges," said Superintendent Wallace. "I never gave any privileges. Any orders of this kind have always come from upstairs.

"It was not necessary for the county detectives to close the Station street gambling house. Our police could have made that raid. The director had a report of the gambling there and his orders to raid would have been carried out had they been issued.

"I have always objected to permitting gambling houses to run in the East End. If there is to be gambling in Pittsburgh it should be downtown, where the police can look after it."

Moore is charged with having carried tales to Mayor Hays. According to reports, the director has a habit of keeping tab on the superintendent of police when that official takes a trip out of town. This is objected to by Wallace, and is the cause of the bitter feeling. The mayor always tells the superintendent what the director has said, and then remarks, "But don't pay any attention to him."

Speaks of Moore's Backbone.

Wallace is strongly in favor of compelling the street railway company to place fenders on its cars. "Of course I am in favor of fenders," said he. "I believe in taking every possible precaution to protect the lives of the people of Pittsburgh.

"The fenders which have been tested are not worth a 3-cent piece. There are good fenders in the country. Other cities have them, and there is no reason why Pittsburgh should not be able to secure them. If the department of public safety had a sufficient amount of backbone the street cars of Pittsburgh would be equipped with fenders."

Not long ago the director suggested to the superintendent he should resign. Wallace did not quit, and told Moore he had no intention of getting out. There is not a week the two officials do not have an argument. As matters stand, there are really two heads to the department, for Wallace has served notice he will boss the police so long as he remains in charge of the bureau.

Employes of the department are complaining to the mayor concerning the director's methods of issuing political orders. They say he calls them in and in so many words tells them to do certain things or take the consequences.

During the absence of the director on his vacation Mayor Hays has taken charge of the department. There are many rumors concerning the future, and most of the rumor-makers predict the retirement of Moore.

HIGHBINDERS SHOOT DURING CHINESE PLAY

Three Men Are Killed and Another Fatally Wounded at a Theater.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—During the performance in the Chinese theater in Doyer street tonight highbinders in the audience opened a fusillade of revolver shots against their enemies. Three members of a rival society are dead and one is mortally wounded. Many other Chinamen are less dangerously hurt.

It was at the climax of the mimic tragedy on the boards that the real tragedy was sprung. Just after 10 o'clock the actors set off a lot of firecrackers, which sputter and make a hideous noise, supposed to frighten away the green dragon which is about to rend the fair maiden, daughter of a great mandarin.

While the crackers were sputtering and smoke clouded the theater a dozen men sprang to their feet in various places in the audience and began an apparently indiscriminate attack on those seated in front of them. Heavy revolvers were used and the noise penetrated for blocks, bringing a squad of police who captured four men, upon two of whom revolvers were found. Four others were captured later.

STREET CAR PLUNGES OVER AN EMBANKMENT

Motorman and Conductor Hurt in an Accident in Bellevue—Fell Sixty Feet.

Clement Morgan, conductor, and Joseph Fricke, motorman, on the Bellevue line of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, were badly bruised last night by their car falling over an embankment in Forest avenue, Bellevue.

The men were taking their car to the barns, and while descending the Forest avenue grade with speed the brake refused to work. When the curve at Caroline avenue was reached the car left the tracks and fell over a 60-foot embankment. The crew jumped and both men were badly bruised. Dr. Thomas Miller dressed their injuries and the men were taken to the Allegheny General hospital, but they afterward went to their homes.

DECAPITATE MAN AT A CHRISTENING

Revolting Murder Occurs as Result of Dispute at a Latrobe Celebration.

TWO SUSPECTS MAKE ESCAPE

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

LATROBE, PA., Aug. 6.—A murder of a most revolting character was committed at a christening celebration in a Loyalhanna boarding house late last night when Michael Martin, a Slav, was cut to pieces. The murder grew out of a trifling dispute which arose during the festivities. Beer had been flowing freely and when a dispute occurred all the people in the house started to fight.

They had quieted down again when a woman came rushing in and said a body was lying out in the yard. Investigation showed Martin's body, with the head cut off, arms severed, trunk slashed and covered with blood. Philip Mahlet and Tony Mahlet were alleged to have gone out in the yard to fight with Martin.

Shortly after the murder they were seen running through the woods a short distance away. The two suspects, in company with Andy Lovek and Tony Krboi, fellow countrymen, boarded a freight train and are supposed to have gone in the direction of Braddock, where Mahlet has a brother.

Officer R. M. Try of Latrobe, with Detectives Hearst and Jerk of Loyalhanna, left for Braddock this morning. Martin was 35 years old. He had a wife and one child and lived at Loyalhanna.

WEATHER DELAYS PEACE SQUADRON

Fog Will Put Back Opening of the Conference One Day.

EVERYTHING IN READINESS

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 6.—Instead of arriving at Portsmouth on Monday, the vessels placed at the disposal of the Russian and Japanese peace delegations will probably not reach that city before Tuesday morning. The ships arrived at Newport this afternoon, and the Mayflower, with M. Witte and Baron Rosen, came into port.

After a stay of nearly five hours the Russian representatives left for Boston on a special train at 10 p. m. They decided to remain in that city until tomorrow and proceed to Portsmouth by rail.

Commander Cameron Rolt Winslow of the Mayflower, the flagship of the squadron issued instructions tonight to delay sailing until tomorrow. The vessels will, therefore, be unable to reach their destination before Monday night or Tuesday morning, and it is expected the envoys will be formally received some time during Tuesday.

This modification of the original program was decided on at the luncheon at Oyster Bay on Friday, when M. Witte declared to the president he was not a good sailor, and preferred to make at least half the trip to Portsmouth by rail.

Commander Winslow signaled the dispatch boat Dolphin, which has the Japanese envoys on board, and the convoy Galveston to enter Newport and leave for Portsmouth tomorrow. The vessels came into the harbor shortly after 7 o'clock and anchored for the night. The squadron will probably get under way early tomorrow. The present plan is to steam slowly and reach Portsmouth Monday night or Tuesday morning. When M. Witte reaches that city he will go on board the Mayflower and will be formally received by Rear Admiral Reed, commandant of the navy yard.

Envoys Exchange Messages.

The trip from Oyster Bay to Newport was an uneventful one. After breakfast this morning, Third Assistant Secretary of State H. H. D. Peirce, who is on the convoy, prepared messages of greeting for M. Witte and Baron Komura, which Capt. Cutler of the Galveston sent by wireless telegraph to the Mayflower and Dolphin. Replies came later that both missions had a comfortable night and were enjoying the trip thoroughly. As the Mayflower got under way this afternoon M. Witte, who stood on the bridge with Commander Winslow, doffed his hat to the Galveston and waved a hearty greeting.

All Is in Readiness.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 6.—After a day of activity in the navy yard, the finishing touches in preparation for the peace conference were made late this afternoon. Everything is in readiness, both on the inside and the outside of the large new naval stores building, where the plenipotentiaries are to be received tomorrow, and where they are to hold their daily sessions thereafter.

The second floor of the building is to be occupied by the peace missions. The conference room is in the center of the building over the main entrance. Adjoining it on one side is a suite of three spacious rooms, which have been assigned to the Japanese envoys. On the other side is a reception room for representatives of the United States government. Beyond this is a suite of three rooms for the use of the Russian mission.

On either side of a corridor which divides the building are large dining rooms, where midday luncheons will be served separately to the respective missions. In the eastern dining room Admiral Meade, commandant of the navy yard, will tomorrow serve a breakfast to the envoys, their suites and about 80 invited guests.

Rooms Are Fireproof.

Two fireproof rooms have been fitted up for the storage of documents. The conference room is imposingly furnished. A mammoth table in the center is surrounded by huge chairs, beautifully upholstered in black leather. On the floor is a costly Persian rug. At either end of the room are mahogany tables adapted for clerical work. The walls of the room are draped with flags used by the navy in making the international code signals. These flags relieve the bare walls in all of the rooms, and are the only decorations. It has cost the United States government $15,000 to equip the quarters for the conference.

Without the building all appearance of newness has been removed. The borders of the newly laid cement walk have been sodded and the gravel walk leading to the landing, 1,000 feet away, has been put in repair. Everything at the landing stage has been made ship-shape.

The wonted quiet of a New England Sabbath was somewhat disturbed in Portsmouth today by the animated anticipation of tomorrow's events. The business section of the city is gay with bunting, the national colors prevailing in the decorative scheme. Throngs of visitors from the surrounding cities and towns today augmented the many strangers who have flocked to the city.

Hotels Are Filling Up.

Every available room in the hotel where the missions are to be quartered has been taken. The city is filled with a small army of newspaper correspondents, representing, in addition to the press associations and the great dailies of the United States, journals in Europe and Japan.

The news that M. Witte had abandoned his trip by water and was to arrive here by train was the only development of interest during the day. The arrangements were made whereby Herbert D. Peirce, son of the third assistant secretary of state, will meet the Russian plenipotentiaries at the railroad station and will convey them to the Hotel Wentworth. Young Mr. Peirce speaks Russian fluently.

All arrangements for tomorrow's exercises, including the breakfast at the navy yard and the extension of the hospitality of the state and nation at the Portsmouth courthouse, have been completed. At the conclusion of the exercises at the courthouse, the plenipotentiaries will go to their hotel, there to remain until the first business session of the missions is held on Tuesday morning.

Tonight Rear Admiral Mead issued an order postponing tomorrow's exercises until further notice. Messrs. Berg and Batcheff, assistant to Mr. Shipoff, director of the treasury department, and delegate from the Russian minister of finance, arrived at the Hotel Wentworth tonight from New York.

Witte Kisses Conductor.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—M. Witte and party arrived here from Newport at 11:40 o'clock tonight and were immediately driven to the hotel Touraine. Accompanying M. Witte are Gregory Wilenkin, a financial agent of the Russian embassy at Washington, and two secret service officers. When the train stopped at the Back Bay station, M. Witte rushed from his car and ran up the platform, the secret service officers finding it difficult to keep up with him. The envoy went up to the locomotive and shook hands with the engineer and fireman, and then returned to his car, where he embraced Conductor A. B. Therien and imprinted a kiss on his forehead.

RUSSIA WISHES TO BE OUR ALLY

Semi-Officially Declares America Her Friend and Likes Our State Methods.

INDORSES HERTZEN'S PLANS

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 6.—The republication here today by the Novoe Vremya of an article written in 1889 by Alexander Hertzen, the Russian author and political agitator, in which a strong plea is made for a Russo-American alliance, and in which the American and European systems of government are compared, most favorably to that of America, is not without interest, and is of considerable significance, particularly in view of the general political situation, and the fact that Russia is today upon the point of establishing a general assembly and granting the country some sort of a constitution. The presence of the Russian peace plenipotentiaries in the United States also adds significance to the republication of the article, as likewise does the Novoe Vremya's relations with the government. The Novoe Vremya is fully aware that the relaunching today of Hertzen's ideas is acceptable to the government, and, in fact, the printing of it may be called semi-official.

Hertzen died in Paris January 21, 1870, after many years of exile because of his advanced ideas, which were not acceptable to the Russian government. During his exile he published in London a newspaper of liberal tendencies, called Kolokol (the Bell), and in which he carried on a relentless propaganda for the constitutionalism of Russia. The circulation of Hertzen's works in Russia was prohibited until within the past few months, when the ban was removed.

Pleads for American Alliance.

The opening paragraph of the article published today is a strong and logical plea for an alliance between Russia and America, quoted by Hertzen from a Philadelphia newspaper printed in 1858, and citing physical and political reasons therefor. The idea of a possible alliance is one of the principal themes of the article, which, continuing, says that Russia should free herself from old world prejudices and fallacies and turn to her great neighbor across the Pacific and learn a good lesson from her political and commercial successes.

"Russia having reached the Pacific," says the article, "there stands between the two nations only the broad ocean, but naught of antiquated prejudices or envy. If Russia can free herself from the St. Petersburg traditions, her best and most natural ally is the United States of America."

Hertzen notes a lack of sympathy on the part of the other European nations for Russia, and refers to America's kindliness to that country. "Both countries overflow with strength, energy and the spirit of organization," continues the article; "both are without pasts, and both began their national lives by breaking with traditions."

American Constitution Praised.

Hertzen commends America's handling of questions of state, declaring that American institutions fulfill all the demands of the democratic republic. He eulogizes the American constitution and the electoral system, saying that Russia should study these carefully and follow many of the features thereof. He says that the European systems of government mean war, misery and poverty, and asks why Russia follows Europe.

The Novoe Vremya, referring editorially to the article, says that it is worthy of the closest scrutiny.

The morning newspapers appear to be tiring of commenting blindly on the possibilities of the Portsmouth peace conference, but the movements of M. Witte and the others are followed closely and with interest by the people in the daily papers, and they are awaiting actual news of the negotiations with anxiety.

The Novoe Vremya declares that Russia's internal troubles will be ended with the introduction of a representative government. Russia, it says, wishes peace, but peace is necessary to Japan.

REPORTS CONFLICT ON TELEGRAPHERS' STRIKE

Railroad Officials Say It Will End in 12 Hours—Men Declare They Are Winning—Trains Delayed.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ST. PAUL, MINN., Aug. 6.—There continues to be a wide variance between the official statements given out by the contending sides in the strike of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers against the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern roads. Officials of the roads assert that 12 hours more will see the finish of the strike; that regular trains are on schedule time and freight is moving promptly.

On the other hand, President H. B. Perham of the telegraphers' union tonight said the situation as reported to him was more favorable to the operators than at any stage of the strike. He denied there had been any further disaffection since that reported yesterday in the Idaho division, and that 20 men had been sent to call out the operators who had returned to work on that division. He admitted the company was sending strike-breakers west.

At the Union station it was reported the North Coast limited on the Northern Pacific was seven hours late, while the Twin City express on the same road arrived two hours late. The Great Northern's Pacific coast train arrived on time this afternoon.

CABLE NOW CONNECTS FAR ALASKAN POINT

SEATTLE, Aug. 6.—Seward, Alaska, has been connected with the outer world by telegraphic communication, according to a report received today. With the connection of the Seward and Valdez cable, the government now has about 2,300 miles of cable in Alaskan waters.

PERSONAL REMINISCENCES OF PORTSMOUTH

By ANNA R. STRATTON.

Quaint and stately in its old-fashioned beauty, Portsmouth, N. H., is one of the most distinctive towns or cities in the entire country. Its broad, unpaved streets are lined with rows of frame houses of the simple yet impressive colonial style of architecture which is still preserved against the march of modern adaptations and the introduction of modern improvements which tend to obliterate the memories of former times are frowned upon by the inhabitants, who are largely descendants of the old sea captains who, three-quarters of a century and more ago, followed the prosperous East India trade. Their descendants today constitute the aristocracy of Portsmouth, who have, up to the present time, been able to hold their own against the aggressiveness of the newly rich.

It is a comparatively flat town, built on the banks of the tidewater Piscataqua, which, opposite the town, is a mighty river, across which bridges reach to Kittery, Me., and the Portsmouth navy yard, while little ferries also ply from shore to shore. The streets are wide and shaded by magnificent trees, some of them more than a century old, and in the rear of the houses are quaint, old-fashioned gardens, where the old-time perennials bloom, beds of phlox, larkspur and lavender vieing in color and fragrance with the gardens of roses tended by loving hands, which have cared for them from the time their owners were little children almost to the day of their death, for the houses have been the homes of families for generations.

Back from the sidewalks, across a few feet of grassy lawn, stand the larger houses of the colonial type, the homes built by the more prosperous of the old sea captains and now the pride of their descendants. Up a short flight of steps, guarded by a slender balustrade to the tiny porch the visitor passes and reaches for the great hanging brass knocker above his head, whose rap-rap causes the heavy paneled door to swing open, while a small, white-capped maid ushers him into the wide hall running the depth of the house, a door at the rear almost always standing open, if it be summer time, and revealing the gay flowers in the garden beyond. Even the smaller houses which mingle with their more aristocratic neighbors on every street have the same quaint colonial doorways, supported by graceful pillars at the side and overhead the arching transom, with its many tiny panes of glass. The houses are painted white or a Quakerish drab, with white trimmings, and have green outside shutters.

Within many of the houses is still retained the old-time flavor of the sea. The myriad crystal prisms which dangle from the chandeliers or from the tall crystal candelabra which flank the high mantels, sparkle in the sunlight as it enters in the daytime between the half-open blinds or in the evening when the gaslight flames and reveals cabinets filled with curios of foreign lands, shells whose delicate pink interiors are full of wonder to the children who are only occasionally permitted to hold them to their ears to hear the music of the sea, while the hostess tells tales of strange countries bordering on southern seas, where the shells were gathered. There is scarcely a home where the draperies of rich and curious stuffs do not tell their own tale of years of wandering, while many families preserve the relics of the ships which voyaged around Cape Horn to the Indian ocean. In the dining-room the tall, polished high-boy, with its array of crystal and quaint blue ware, much of it kept intact since the colonies were young, and the prisoned candelabras bespeak the generous hospitality of these old colonial houses, where the breath of the sea air is never forgotten because of the countless cherished mementoes which seem to repeat to the children of the present generation the story of the long wanderings of their grandsires in China and Japan, in India and the islands of the southern seas.

There are two especially distinctive features of the old town of Portsmouth. They are the antique shops, where genuine antiques gathered from all parts of the northern New England states are sold, and where the rich and curiously woven silks and other fabrics from far eastern countries procured scores of years ago, because American travelers found it easy to sail to Europe and Asia, are displayed, and the ship blacksmith shops, where great anchors, covered with the drift of the ocean; immense ships' cables and smaller anchors and hawsers tell their story of the vicissitudes of ventures on the sea. There is not so much work for the brawny ships' blacksmiths as at one time, but their shops remain, a relic of old-time Portsmouth.

Many of the churches of Portsmouth are the typical New England meeting house, whose bare exterior, with its steeple and belfry, is matched by an equally plain interior, straight-backed pews, divided by straight aisles leading up to the pulpit, a platform protruding from a slight recess in the rear wall. There was no ornamentation in the old Puritan meeting houses, and even now they have not all given way to the luxurious and modern church building.

The social life of this New England town is centered about the naval officers who are stationed in the Portsmouth navy yard, but who, when not on duty, live in the town across the river. Indeed, when speaking of the officers who board in Portsmouth in some of the old colonial mansions, whose doors, because of family financial difficulties, which, however, do not affect the social standing, have opened to take in a boarder or two, it is customary to refer to them when on duty as "their week on," or when in town as "their week off." The social life is very simple. Tennis is a very popular morning and afternoon recreation; there is some driving, a little boating on the river, though because of its treacherousness this is limited to the steam launches, and at the afternoon teas there is a sprinkling of men as well as the women of the town. In the winter there are dances, and in the summer garden parties in some of the beautiful old-fashioned gardens. The people of Portsmouth, because of their quiet and simple habits of life, are omnivorous readers, and all the latest books are found in their libraries, well-thumbed books strewing the tables. Though during the summer many visitors and tourists stop there to get a glimpse of one of the most quaint and characteristic of the New England towns, the life of Portsmouth varies little through the different seasons, and the guests entertained in the homes of the old families of the town, whether in summer or winter, do not fail to receive a taste of the most cordial hospitality rendered in so graceful a manner as to be cherished as a most precious remembrance, not surpassed even by the memories of the wide-open homes and the generous hosts of the south.

FIRE DESTROYS BIG PLANT IN ALLEGHENY

Thompson's Linseed Oil Works Is Almost Totally Ruined by Early Morning Blaze.

Fire of unknown origin yesterday morning partially destroyed the linseed oil plant of Thompson & Co., known as the Diamond linseed oil works, in West Diamond street, Allegheny. The property loss is estimated at $15,000, and is fully covered by insurance.

The first alarm was sent in at 6:55, and three companies responded. When Chief John K. Hunter arrived, he called out two other districts, making nine companies to fight the flames. Because of the combustible nature of the contents of the building, the blaze spread rapidly, and the smoke became so dense that it was almost impossible for the firemen to get within working distance.

The building is flanked on both sides by very narrow alleys, which are occupied by dozens of Italian families. The excitement attendant upon the removal of household goods from the small houses in the alleys added to the confusion and further retarded the efforts of the firemen.

With nine companies pumping water into the Thompson plant, the cellar was soon filled, and water rushed out into West Diamond street and into the cellar of Boggs & Buhl, whose big store adjoins the ruined building. By 11 o'clock the fire had been extinguished. None of the nearby buildings was damaged except by water. Chief Hunter kept one engine in West Diamond street and pumped the water from the cellar of the oil plant and from the Boggs & Buhl plant.

The Thompson company is composed of John Thompson, Edward Thompson and James M. Thompson, who own the property at 507-511 West Diamond street. The plant was built in 1847, and is the oldest in this vicinity.

While standing near the burning works, Jesse Cooper of Rebecca street was overcome by smoke and fell unconscious. He was taken to the Allegheny general hospital, but recovered within a short time and was able to go home.

CAPT. E. P. HOWELL DEAD

Prominent Southern Journalist and Confederate Officer Has Passed Away.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ATLANTA, GA., Aug. 6.—Capt. Evan P. Howell, for many years prominently identified with southern journalism, died at noon today after an illness of three weeks, brought on by a carbuncle complicated with diabetes. He was 65 years of age. His widow, formerly Miss Julia Erwin, and seven children, survive him.

Capt. Howell had not been engaged in active business since 1897, when he retired from the control of the Atlanta Constitution. He had bought a controlling interest in that paper with Henry W. Grady and William A. Hemphill, 21 years before. He figured conspicuously in the development of the south, was associated with the first cotton exposition in 1881, and was a director in every new railroad built into Atlanta since the war. His latest public service was that of mayor of Atlanta, his term expiring last year.

Capt. Howell was born December 19, 1839, in Milton county, Georgia. He served the confederacy first as a member of the First Georgia regiment, later commanding Howell's battery of artillery during practically the whole of the war. Then he settled in Atlanta and practiced law. He was solicitor general during the reconstruction period. He had been identified with the Democratic party since the war, being delegate-at-large from Georgia to several national conventions. He served as member of both branches of the state legislature some years ago. He was a member of the commission which built Georgia's new capitol.

Capt. Howell was tendered a place in the diplomatic service by President Cleveland, but declined it. He served on the commission to investigate the conduct of the war with Spain.

HODGE TO BE ARRAIGNED IN BUFFALO COURT TODAY

Justice Says He Will Investigate the Regularity of the Warrant for Arrest.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Police Justice Thomas Murphy, who granted temporary freedom to Frank Hodge, wanted in Pittsburgh for running down an Italian, and who fixed the prisoner's bail at $1,000, announced tonight the prisoner would be arraigned in police court tomorrow.

"Hodge will be charged with being a fugitive from justice when he appears before me," said Judge Murphy. "It will be optional on his part whether he will have an examination in police court tomorrow. If he declines to be examined, it will not be my duty to go into the merits of the case the police have against him. All I shall do will be to decide whether the warrant on which he was arrested here Friday was duly issued and sufficient to hold him.

"If the warrant is found to be proper, I shall order Hodge held here until the requisition papers from the governor of Pennsylvania arrive in Buffalo. The case may be delayed in this way for a month. It is not likely Hodge will be convicted unless it is shown he is guilty of criminal negligence."

"Who arranged to get bail for the prisoner?"

"Tracey C. Becker, Hodge's attorney, applied to have the prisoner released on bail, and after getting some information on the case I complied with his request."

WILL CROSS GRAND CANYON ON SLENDER ROPE RAILWAY

Passengers in Aerial Car Will Be Able to See Hundreds of Miles at an Elevation of 8,000 Feet Above the Sea Level.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

SALT LAKE, UTAH, Aug. 6.—The gigantic gorge of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado is soon to be spanned at its widest point by an aerial tramway which will carry passengers from the bottom of the Bright Angel trail to the top of the Buckskin plateau, 8,000 feet in height.

From this eminence in Coconino county, Arizona, one may see California and Nevada plainly to the westward, Utah on the north, while Colorado and New Mexico will stretch away to the east. Of all the expeditions which have been made to the Grand canyon, from the very bottom of the gorge to the top of Buckskin or Kaibab plateau, reached by a circuitous 12-mile trail, none has disclosed the wonders of scenery which a ride on the aerial car will offer. By the anchoring of a cable some 300 feet in length to the wall of rock on either side of the gorge on which will be operated a cage or car, and the further improvement of the trail on the north side of the huge crevice, it is proposed to transfer tourists from the bottom of the Bright Angel trail to the top of the plateau. To build this aerial tramway a company has just been incorporated.

Will Not Seize Boats.

Secretary Shaw tonight directed Surgeon General Wyman to arrange to put the private boat Grace and other vessels, working in conjunction with the public health and marine hospital service, under the revenue cutter flag, and to put each of these under a revenue cutter officer, making them government boats instead of Mississippi or private vessels. Secretary Shaw has also directed the revenue cutter authorities not to make arrests or seizures, but to turn back any boats or persons coming from an infected district. This instruction, however, it is explained, is not designed to apply to persons who deliberately or persistently attempt to run the quarantine.

The secretary tonight received a telegram from Governor Blanchard saying the people of that state and he himself objected to the presence in Louisiana waters of the Grace, which the governor said is in the Biloxi's in Louisiana territory and is one of the private volunteer boats of the Mississippi quarantine authorities.

SHAW SUSTAINS CHAYTOR IN HIS QUARANTINE WORK

Tells Revenue Cutter's Commander That He Can Prevent Egress from the Infected District.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Today Secretary Shaw telegraphed Capt. E. C. Chaytor of the revenue cutter Winona sustaining the latter's actions in the enforcement of the yellow fever quarantine between Mississippi and Louisiana, and giving some general instructions. The dispatch is in reply to one from Capt. Chaytor saying the friction between the states has become serious, and asking for an official definition of the revenue cutter's authority. The correspondence follows:

Gulfport, Miss., Aug. 5, 1905.
Secretary of the Treasury, Washington, D. C.:

Request you telegraph specific instructions as to my authority to act in the matter of enforcing quarantine between the states of Mississippi and Louisiana. Mississippi is enforcing a strict quarantine against Louisiana, where yellow fever is epidemic. Several private launches in the employment of the United States public health and marine hospital service and acting under instructions of Surgeon Wasdin of the United States Public Health Marine hospital service, are threatened to be arrested by the naval militia and sheriffs of Louisiana, and one of the aforesaid launches and her crew have been arrested and are now in the custody of Louisiana authorities. The situation has become acute and serious in the friction between the states of Mississippi and Louisiana up to the present time. I have governed my actions in the interest of the public health without regard to state lines and now the matter seems to be a question of state rights up to this stage. I have been guided by laws and regulations pertaining to quarantine in my action in this matter, but under the present serious situation I ask your instructions as to my further procedure.

Secretary Shaw's reply today was as follows:

I think you are proceeding properly, notwithstanding conflicting reports. Promptly advise the name, general description and name of master of every private vessel placed at your disposal. We will then give authority which will doubtless protect them. There may be some question about your authority to arrest vessels and tow them to Ship Island, but there can be no doubt of your authority to prevent both vessels and persons leaving the infected district. I have directed Capt. Ross to proceed to New Orleans and exercise general supervision over his branch of the service.

MRS. TAGGART SAYS SHE'LL BE CLEARED

Declares That When Side of the Story Is Told It Will Change Things.

BOY VISITS WITH FATHER

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

WOOSTER, O., Aug. 6.—The principals in the Taggart divorce case spent the day quietly. Mrs. Taggart rested at her home in this city with the oldest boy and Capt. Taggart went to Orrville, where he stayed with his parents. He was accompanied by "Thaddeus," the youngest boy. Mrs. Taggart gave her consent last evening to the captain taking the boy, providing he was sent home by noon today. The boy was at home as promised. Mrs. Taggart, in an interview this afternoon, said:

"As you know, up to this time and for a few days yet, you will have heard only the worst that can be said of a woman—of the most unfortunate woman in the world. When my side is told I opinion will change and I will be vindicated. I came here with my boys for the sole purpose and for the sake of clearing from my boys the stigma incident to divorce proceedings. By the help of God, all this will be accomplished."

Mrs. Taggart characteristically defended the wives of officers in the army, in this sustaining the reputation she has won here for saying only good things of those of whom she speaks.

Attorneys for Taggart this afternoon said that they expected a number of officers to appear in his behalf, among them one who is a resident of Pittsburgh. Judge Sawyer stated that all the persons named as co-respondents would answer either by deposition or in person. Those who would be here in person would be Col. A. C. Miner, Lieut. Ryther and Clinton Spencer of Chicago.

Detectives in the employ of either the plaintiff or defendant are still in the city, as was proven by an incident made public this afternoon. Last night there came to this city as the guest of Henry Mowery of Woodland avenue a young man dressed in military uniform. The man had hardly alighted from the train before he was shadowed and kept under surveillance all night. This morning, when it was learned that he was being watched, the detectives would only leave the trail after being assured that the officer was a captain from the Ohio State university and that he had never seen Mr. or Mrs. Taggart.

Perry Hope, the boy who was arrested for perjury on affidavit of Mrs. Taggart, will be arraigned tomorrow evening, when it is expected that the attorney in the divorce suit will appear in police court.

REINSTATED PUDDLERS TO AID THE FINISHERS

Will Try to Have the Latter Admitted to the Mills of American Steel Hoop Company.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 6.—The puddlers, now that the strike at the American steel hoop mills is over and the mills have been thrown open to them, will make an effort to have the American Steel Hoop Company take some action which will allow the finishers to return to work. The provisions of the advisory board, which were that only men who received union wages could go back to work, cut out the finishers, but permitted the puddlers to take advantage of the move.

The Girard lodge of the Amalgamated voted almost solidly against returning to work, the vote being 15 to 1 in favor of closed mills. This makes a total of 111 in favor of open mills and 55 against. Girard has no plant now and the lodge two weeks ago voted to return its charter.

A committee composed of J. C. Jones, John Hunt, John K. Clark, John Hargate and James Fletcher will meet General Manager I. W. Jenks of the Steel Hoop Company and try to induce him to make concessions to the finishers which will enable them to return to work as union men.

LIGHTNING BOLT FATAL.

Fluid Strikes a Freight Station and Kills One Young Man and Injures Four Others.

DUBOIS, PA., Aug. 6.—(Special.)—During an electrical storm that passed over Cranesnew, a mining village about 20 miles north of this place, this afternoon between 2 and 3 o'clock, the freight station of the Pittsburgh, Shawmut & Northern railway was struck by lightning and Joseph Hire, aged 25, was instantly killed. Steve Rendzis, aged 18, was fatally injured and Leonard Schard, Gilbert Short and Frank Mahoney were seriously injured. They were shocked and burned about the head and body. The injured are all young men.

The freight station was badly wrecked by the bolt, but not totally destroyed.

JOHNSTOWN, PA., Aug. 6.—Daniel Sullivan, aged 14, was instantly killed by lightning this afternoon while at a farm about five miles from this city. With six other boys he was standing in the doorway of a barn when the bolt struck him. Dennis and Dan Sullivan, cousins of the dead boy, were burned and John Collins was blinded for some hours by the flash.

THIEF IN PRIEST'S GARB.

Minister Gives Up His Pulpit to Pretender, and Then Has Watch Stolen from Him.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 6.—John Etheridge, aged 28, in jail here charged with forgery, and who is wanted by the police of Asbury Park, Long Branch, Scranton, Pa.; Dover, N. J., and other places where he is said to have defrauded hotel men and clergymen, passing for a priest or an Episcopal clergyman, was identified by the Rev. Edgar H. Brooks, pastor of St. John's church, Dover, as the man who called at the Dover rectory on a recent Sunday and introduced himself as a clergyman of the Episcopal church.

"I gave up my pulpit to the stranger," said Mr. Brooks, "and he delivered to my people one of the best sermons I ever heard, and before leaving my house he stole my gold watch." Etheridge will probably be taken to New Jersey tomorrow.

SERMON PREACHED BY THE PRESIDENT

Mr. Roosevelt Says High Moral Character Is Real Essence of Christian Life.

ADDRESS IS UNANNOUNCED

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 6.—President Roosevelt this afternoon delivered a lay sermon to the Christian Brotherhood of Oyster Bay. He emphasized especially the necessity of sound character building, holding that high moral character was the real essence of Christian life.

The organization before which the president spoke is a non-sectarian body, composed principally of the male members of the several local churches. The meeting was held in the Sunday school room of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which the Rev. W. I. Bowman is pastor. Mr. Bowman is also the president of the Christian Brotherhood.

Several weeks ago an invitation was extended to the president to address the brotherhood and he promised the Rev. Charles B. Wightman, chairman of the committee, to accept the invitation at some later time. He notified the committee last night that he would make the promised address today, stipulating that no previous announcement should be made of his intention to speak.

Surprised When President Appeared.

About 200 persons attended the meeting this afternoon and practically all of them were surprised when President Roosevelt appeared on the platform and was introduced by Mr. Bowman.

The president carried his own Bible and in beginning his address read selections from the sixth chapter of Matthew, the epistle to the Corinthians and the epistle to James. No verbatim report of the address was made, but the president tonight dictated the following as the substance of his remarks:

"Brother Bowman has spoken of the fact that I have had a large experience. I think that each one of us who has a large experience grows to realize more and more that the essentials of experience are alike for all of us. The things that move us most, the things of the home, of the church, the intimate relations that knit a man to his family, to his close friends, that make him try to do his duty by his neighbor, by his God, are in their essentials just the same for one man as for another, provided the man is in good faith trying to do his duty.

Forces for Evil Organized.

"I feel that the progress of our country really depends upon the sum of the efforts of the individuals acting by themselves, but especially upon the sum of the efforts of the individuals acting in association like this for the betterment of themselves, for the betterment of the communities in which they dwell. There is never any difficulty about the forces of evil being organized. Every time that we get an organization of the forces that are painfully striving for good, an organization like this, we are doing our part to offset, and a little more than offset, the forces of evil.

"I want to read several different texts which it seems to me have especial bearing upon the work of brotherhoods like this, upon the spirit in which not only all of us who are members of this brotherhood, but all of us who strive to be decent Christians, are to apply our Christianity on week days as well as on Sundays. The first verses I want to read can be found in Matthew vii:1, 16, 17, 18:

> First—Judge not that ye be not judged.
> Sixteenth—Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes on thorns, or figs on thistles?
> Seventeenth—Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit, but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit.
> Eighteenth—A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.

Treat All With Charity.

"'Judge not that ye be not judged'—that means treat each of his brothers with charity. Be not quick to find fault. Above all, be not quick to judge another, who, according to his light, is striving to do his duty as each of us hopes he is striving to do his. Let us ever remember that not only we have divine authority for the statement that by our fruits we shall be known, but that also it is true that mankind will tend to judge us by our fruits. It is an especially lamentable thing to see ill done by any man, who from his associations with the church, who, from the fact that he has had the priceless benefits of the teachings of the Christian religion, should be expected to take a position of leadership in the work for good.

"The next quotation I wish to read to you is found in Matthew xxv:37-40, inclusive:

> Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungered and fed thee? or thirsty and gave thee drink? when saw we thee a stranger and took thee in or naked and clothed thee? or when saw we thee sick or in prison and came unto thee? and the king shall answer and say unto them, verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.

Observe the Golden Rule.

That is what this brotherhood means, by trying to worship our Creator, by acting toward His creature as he would have us act, to try to make our religion a driving force in our lives, to do unto others as we would have them do unto us.

The next text I wish to read is found in I. Corinthians, xiii, beginning with the first verse:

> Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal. And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing; and though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor; and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing. Charity suffereth long and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up.
> And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.

Don't Criticise Too Quickly.

"Let us each of us exercise the largest tolerance for his brother who is trying, though in a different way, to lead a decent life; who is trying to do good in his fashion; let each try to show practical sympathy with that brother, not be too quick to criticise.

"In closing I want to read just a few verses from James i:27:

> Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widow in their affliction and to keep himself unspotted from the world.

"If a man will try to serve God the Father by being kindly to the many around him who need such kindness, and by being upright and honest himself, then we have the authority of the good book for saying that we are in honor bound to treat him as a good Christian and extend the hand of brotherhood to him."

At the conclusion of his address, the president shook hands with the members of the brotherhood present. After a brief call at the residence of Mr. Bowman, adjoining the church, he returned to Sagamore Hill.

JILTED LOVER HUGS BRIDE, BREAKS THREE OF HER RIBS

BEAVER FALLS, PA., Aug. 6.—(Special.)—Scorned by the woman he loved, Steve Polaski of Beaver Falls attended the wedding ceremonies of Viena Tuterich, his former sweetheart, who had jilted him, and seizing upon an opportunity for revenge in the Hungarian custom of hugging and kissing the bride, hugged her so strenuously as to break her ribs and cause her to faint.

The woman was being married to Michael Petosk, Polaski's rival in love, and the ceremony was attended with unusual pomp and merriment. According to tradition, the guests were allowed to embrace the bride after throwing a silver dollar into a hat, the money being used to set the young couple up in housekeeping.

The discarded lover fondled her so roughly as to disable her and prevent her taking part in the remainder of the marriage feast and celebration. Mrs. Petosk was taken to a physician, who told her that the hugging she had undergone had broken three of her ribs. Suit probably will be brought for damages against Polaski.

MOORE SKIPS OUT TO AVOID SUIT

Pittsburgh Board of Trade May Prosecute the Street Car Company.

HARMAN FOR PROMPT ACTION

"Director Moore has skipped out of town to avoid a mandamus and I believe that the Pittsburgh Board of Trade should no longer pay any attention to him, but should go ahead and bring suit against the Pittsburgh Railways company for violation of the fender ordinance," said President Thomas D. Harman yesterday. "That is the course I will propose tomorrow night at the meetin of the board of directors.

"If the Pittsburgh Railways company had to pay penalties for violation of the ordinance, it would soon come to terms and put fenders on its cars. That would be a more effective method of getting at the matter than trying to force a public official who has been derelict to his duty.

"I suppose we might go after Mayor Hays, because he is the executive of the city and has jurisdiction over the public safety and other departments, but it is a legal question and the court might rule that the director of public safety is the one to attend to the enforcement of laws for the safety of the public. I believe that Director Moore left the city in a hurry to get out of the way of a lawsuit, although he declared that he was ready to answer in court on a moment's notice.

"The Board of Trade might wait for Director Moore to come back and then take him into court. I am not in favor of waiting, but believe we should have immediate action. Something should be done at once and the Board of Trade will not drop the matter simply because a public official gets out of the state so he can not be compelled by the courts to do his sworn duty.

"What we should do and what I shall propose tomorrow night is that we shall prosecute the Pittsburgh Railways company and try to collect some of the penalties provided in the ordinance of 1893. The law provides that a penalty of not less than $10 nor more than $50 shall be collected for each car run without a fender and a further penalty of the same amount for the failure or neglect of the company to comply with the ordinance within 30 days after the first penalty is imposed.

"An appeal to the public to write letters and postal cards to the street car company and Director Moore would bring no results, for they have disregarded all appeals. I see no other course open except legal proceedings."

The result of the meeting tonight will be awaited with much interest by the public because the organization has taken the initiative in the fender movement, and if it fails to make good its promise to secure the enforcement of the fender ordinance it will be a black eye for the fender movement and will also work injury to the organization.

DOWNTOWN SECTIONS MISS HEAVY RAINFALL

Torrents in East End, but Scarcely Sprinkle in Lower Wards of Two Cities.

A heavy rain fell yesterday afternoon in Pittsburgh and Allegheny, but missed the downtown sections of the two cities. Between 2:30 and 3 o'clock and again shortly after 3 o'clock, there was a downpour in the East End of this city and along East street and Perrysville avenue in Allegheny, the rainfall extending north in the county to West View, Evergreen and Millvale, where it fell in torrents.

At these points the water came down with the force of a cloudburst, while in the downtown wards of Pittsburgh and Allegheny there was scarcely a sprinkle. In the East End the force of the rain was such that many trees were almost denuded of foliage.

Brothers-in-Law Fight.

Richard Fendley and James Atchison, brothers-in-law, got into a fight at their home, 3309 Spring alley, last night, and both were locked up. Atchison has a bad scalp wound, said to have been inflicted by a poker.

PASSENGER IS ASSAULTED BY TROLLEY CONDUCTOR

East End Man, It Is Alleged, Is Brutally Beaten With a Switch Iron.

William M. Yeager, a street car conductor on the Lincoln and Center avenue line, will be arraigned before Magistrate Negley on the charge of committing assault and battery on one of his passengers. On Saturday night, it is alleged, Yeager had a dispute with John Steir of 908 Puckety street, who was riding home on a Center avenue car. The quarrel ended, it is said, by the conductor seizing a switch iron, with which he struck the passenger a terrific blow across the head.

Steir was knocked down and rendered unconscious. Yeager was arrested and locked up in the East End police station, while his victim, with a gash in his scalp and bleeding from wounds in his face, was taken to the office of Dr. F. H. Colhauer in Lincoln avenue.

While working at the Carnegie steel works in Duquesne yesterday, Martin Cole, aged 24, and Steve Stotle, aged 28, were severely burned by a splash of molten metal. They were taken to the McKeesport hospital. Both men were burned about the head, face and hands.

As a result of an explosion at her home yesterday, Olive M. Highowichit of 1233 Water street, Braddock, is in the McKeesport hospital suffering from serious burns about the body. The girl was burned while trying to put out a lamp which exploded.

Negley's Decision on Music.

Two Hungarians in the Greenfield district insisted on singing their national anthem all Saturday night. The neighbors complained after two hours of the melody and the men were arrested. Yesterday they were sentenced by Magistrate Negley to pay a fine of $10 or serve 30 days in the workhouse. In addition he advised all Hungarians in the community to sing their songs indoors hereafter.

He Was Going to New Orleans.

Jacob F. Kolsom, aged 47, of McKeesport, died at the McKeesport hospital yesterday from the shock following a minor operation. He was a nurse, and before going to the hospital told his brother, Frank Kolsom, that he had made arrangements to go to New Orleans to nurse yellow fever patients.

Ralph Is $30 Shy.

Dunne Flourishes a Knife.

Mike Dunne, who gave his residence as Pittsburgh, was arrested at Second avenue and Try street last night. Dunne was flourishing a murderous looking knife and threatening to carve up pedestrians.

RISKS HIS LIFE TO SAVE FRIEND

John Price Finds Grave in River and Charles Breen Narrowly Escapes Similar Fate.

IS RESCUED BY COMPANIONS

While swimming in the Allegheny river above Aspinwall yesterday afternoon John R. Price, aged 18, son of William M. Price of 6412 Marchand street, East End, was seized with cramps and drowned. A companion, Charles Breen, who went to his assistance, was also seized with cramps and was taken from the water unconscious.

Price and three companions had been at Aspinwall to see the new filtration plant. It was proposed that they take a swim. Price was the first to enter the water. After he had swam several yards from shore he was seized with cramps. He attempted to regain the shore, at the same time shouting to his companions to help him. Breen hastily plunged in, followed by his two companions. He reached Price as he was going under and tried to hold him up until the arrival of the others, when he was seized with cramps and was obliged to release his hold on Price, who disappeared under the water. Breen's companions succeeded in getting him to shore, where efforts to revive him were continued for 15 minutes before he showed signs of returning consciousness.

News of Price's death was carried to his home, where his father is lying sick from a partial stroke of paralysis. The sudden news of his son's death caused him to collapse and his condition is serious. Mrs. Price was also completely prostrated by the news and fainted repeatedly. Price's body was recovered several hours later, being found near where it had disappeared.

After a separation of 19 years Michael Leyden of Fifth avenue, McKeesport, a negro yesterday discovered at the McKeesport morgue the dead body of his sister, Lilian Leyden, who is believed to have been murdered at 31 Water street early yesterday morning. Leyden's photograph was found in the dead woman's trunk, and he was sent for to identify the remains. The woman had been known as Lilian Moore. Leyden had not seen the woman for 10 years. Another brother has been sent for and he is expected to confirm the identification.

A post-mortem examination of the woman's body by three McKeesport physicians has failed to uncover the mystery surrounding the death. Her neck was broken, but the only mark on her body was a black eye. The police have been unable to determine whether the woman was murdered, committed suicide or fell from the second story window of the house in Water street. According to inmates of the place she was put to bed at 10:30 o'clock Saturday night, and nothing was seen of her until Policeman John Cassner found her dead body on the pavement in front of the house. The inmates believe she fell from a second story window, which was open.

PROVES A POOR SHOT.

Officer and Citizen Battle With Italians and One of Latter Uses His Revolver.

Ralph Fox of Grant street had a narrow escape from being shot last night at Fourth avenue and Grant street, while assisting Policeman Stanley to arrest two Italians. Louis Dauttierne, one of the Italians, shot at Fox twice. Fox, however, overpowered the foreigner and finally wrested the revolver from him. Anthony Biszard, the other Italian, was also arrested. At the Central station a revolver was found on him. Both men were held as suspicious persons.

Three Italians were standing at Fourth avenue and Grant street having an altercation. Biszard was seen to draw a revolver. Somebody called the policeman, and when he appeared on the scene one of the Italians ran. Biszard and Dauttierne resisted arrest. Fox went to the policeman's assistance. Dauttierne drew his revolver and fired twice at Fox. The latter threw the Italian on the pavement and took the weapon from him.

CONDUCTOR THROWS MAN FROM CAR THROUGH WINDOW

Conductor Edward McKnight, of car 1081 of the Frankstown avenue line, got into a fight yesterday morning with two strangers. McKnight proved more than a match for his opponents and threw them both from the car. One of the men left the car with such momentum that he cleared the sidewalk and plunged through a large plate glass window in the drug store of C. H. B. Hess, 2326 Penn avenue. Policeman Charles Schevely witnessed the battle from a distance, but when he arrived the two strangers had fled. Schevely pursued them, but failed to catch up.

Heavy Cable Falls.

A feed cable of the Central District and Printing Telegraph Company fell last night at Nixon and Gladstone streets, Allegheny, and caused a lot of damage and excitement. The heavy cable in its descent carried with it some wires of the Allegheny city light plant and half a dozen street arc lamps. The light wires got tangled with the cable, and fireworks followed. Employes of the city light plant repaired the wires and set up new arc lamps.

Band Concerts Are Popular.

SIX ARE CHRISTENED WITHOUT USE OF WATER

Waving of Flags and the Roll of Drums Marks an Impressive Ceremony Held in Salvation Army Citadel.

Six children were christened without water last night in the Salvation Army citadel, Penn avenue and Seventh street. The ceremony was performed in characteristic Salvation Army fashion, and while there was no fount and no sprinkling, there was nothing lost in the impressiveness of the service because the Stars and Stripes and the blue and red banner of the salvationists waved over the heads of the six children who were brought up to the altar rail. Instead of an organ prelude there was the unceasing roll of the base drum and the enthusiastic singing of hymns.

In the category of the Salvation Army the ceremony was not called a christening. Parents who are Salvationists tender their children to God and the work of the army, and the service is called the dedication. It is conducted by an officer with the rank of colonel, general or commander, and for last night's service Col. R. E. Holtz of Cleveland, commander of the local province, was brought here to officiate. He was accompanied here by Cadet Holtz, Lieut. Holtz and Capt. Goodal of Cleveland.

A big audience witnessed the dedication. A choir of 40 voices with tambourines, drums and a few string instruments, gathered behind the rail, and Col. Holtz took the seat in the center. After the singing of several hymns Staff Captain Sprague picked up the American flag and took his station at the colonel's right hand, while Staff Captain Trudgeon held the Salvation Army banner over the officer's other shoulder. Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Croft, both soldiers in the army, were called, and walked forward with four sons.

"No race suicide here," observed Col. Holtz, while the hall rang with laughter and hallelujas.

The service then was read for each child and the vows exacted are practically similar to those of any church except that the parents promise to dedicate the lives of the children to a life work in behalf of the Salvation Army. John Fellows Croft, aged 12, walked sturdily forward and bowed gracefully while the prayer was being said. Walter Allison Croft, aged 9, came next, followed by John Hamilton Croft, aged 7. Each lad seemed self possessed and each received a kiss and a blessing from Col. Holtz.

Herbert Alexander Croft is only 16 months old. He clung to his father's neck and when the colonel attempted to take him in his arms the baby objected and held on with a firm grip. When all had been "dedicated," the piano and drums struck up and a hymn was sung while every worshipper shouted "Amen!"

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilbert walked forward with Baby Ralph Charles Gilbert and took the usual vows. Then Mr. and Mrs. Richard Graham, a very young couple, took up their first born, a tiny baby girl with glorious blue eyes and a wealth of curls of gold circling her head. The baby held her hands outstretched and smiled while the officer spoke. Her innocent gesture seemed to touch all hearts and tears streamed down the faces of many of the congregation and many an amen was choked in sobs. This closed the ceremony. The flags were waved and entwined, the drums and tambourines rolled again and all joined with exultant voices in another hymn.

Though reported on good authority the Russian dream of a secret treaty with this country to control the world's food and oil supply is surprising. Russia and the United States are the greatest food and oil producing countries and they might profit at the expense of other nations through such an agreement, but it would be contrary to all American sentiment and precedents. We have no place for secret agreements in our system.

Another rapid transit tunnel is projected in the Oakland district. It will add much to the facility of travel in the city, though less than the proposed tunnel through Herron hill. High speed can be maintained through these tunnels without the danger to other traffic or pedestrians that is ever present on surface tracks. These tunnels will form the nucleus for an ultimate system of subways that will extend to other than the hill portions of the city.

Pittsburgh has the honor of beginning the manufacture of steel trolley cars as it had of beginning the creation of steel freight cars. Butler has been the pioneer in building steel baggage and mail coaches, but Butler is practically Pittsburgh. The steel car has marked an important advance in railroad operation, the freight cars serving to reduce cost and the steel passenger cars contributing to the safety of the traveling public. Anything in steel finds its home in the Pittsburgh region.

Elaborate arrangements have been made by the state department of agriculture for this season's farmer's institute. No less than 400 days of instruction have been arranged. These meetings are of an intensely practical character, for in addition to addresses by progressive agriculturists on special topics, they are made the occasion for a general interchange of experience. The experiment stations deal with problems effectively, but the institute covers the experiments in practical farming in each section.

The approaching retirement of Admiral Charles E. Clark revives patriotic remembrance of his conspicuous service to his country. The magnificent cruise of the battleship Oregon from the Pacific station around Cape Horn, twice across the equator and between times in polar waters was one of the most thrilling incidents of the Spanish war. Its effective work at Santiago can never be forgotten. A splendid ship, of course, manned by splendid men, but the commander must have played a very important part throughout. Charles E. Clark is safely enrolled on the list of American naval heroes of highest merit.

Police Superintendent Wallace is not disposed to defend the chief of the department to which he belongs. In fact he holds Director Moore responsible for some of the notable failures of the administration. This is a matter that seems to demand further investigation and elucidation. The public has been disposed to put some of the blame on Supt. Wallace that he now shifts to the shoulders of Director Moore. Director Moore's course in the matter of street car fenders has been discreditable beyond question. In the other directions mentioned it has not been so apparent, but the public will be glad to have light. The whole city administration is open to serious objection as being inefficient and extravagant, though the public cannot always make an accurate division of the responsibility for its failures.

Our Democratic contemporary, the Post, insists on being prosecutor, principal witness, judge and jury in the Philadelphia scandals. It has convicted the accused out of hand. Having convicted them in this manner it charges them to the Republican party because to it that seems good for the Democracy. It may expect its Democratic readers to take it seriously, but no one else will. Far more ludicrous, however, is its attempt to read Justice John Stewart out of the party which has chosen him to head its ticket. It declares Judge Stewart is opposed to the Republican state organization. It ought to know better, for Judge Stewart is not the man to accept a nomination from a party with which he is not in sympathy. He is now, as he has always been, a Republican, though on one regretted occasion he thought desperate measures necessary to secure reform. He does not think so now.

Dangerous Places.

Factory Inspector O'Donnell in his talk to the Men's club yesterday made some disclosures about the sweat shops in Pittsburgh that will set a good many people to thinking. Conditions are bad when the factory inspectors feel called upon to close the shops. They are not general health officers, though they have powers for the protection of employes from unsanitary conditions. The city health bureau has larger powers and if it and the police bureau did all that lies in their power the factory inspectors would have a modified task to perform.

When it comes to tenements, the factory inspectors have nothing to do with the problem. It is one for the local authorities and one that should be given close attention. Pittsburgh is not as dirty as New Orleans, but if an epidemic of some sort should start in its tenements and sweat shops there would be revelations startling to an indifferent population. It is in such places that epidemics do usually start and it is through them and their unsanitary conditions that contagions are widely spread.

It is the business of the department of public safety to prevent plague spots, physical and moral. The police power is ample for the abatement of any nuisance that endangers life, health, or public comfort. And it is always a fair question whether all is being done along this line that may be done and the usual answer is, no.

Mad Dog Scares.

Apparently the season cannot pass without the annual "mad dog" scarce. It is the "dog days" which are popularly supposed to render the whole canine family dangerous. It is true that in sultry weather brute tempers are short—a similar development is often noted in the human species—but not every dog that snarls and bites is afflicted with rabies. Hydrophobia is a rare disease in men or animals. Every year the public prints contain accounts of hundreds being bitten by rabid animals, yet the cases of hydrophobia are few and far between.

Some doctors contend there is no such malady—that the train of symptoms called rabies may be produced by an active imagination. That is a very extreme view. Yet it is a fact that fright is one of the worst of devitalizing forces. The man who is afraid is more likely to fall a victim to any disorder than his stout hearted brother who gives his whole attention to his own affairs and leaves the microbes to take care of themselves. Not every dog that yelps in August is mad.

The Busy Kaiser.

An odd story comes by cable from Berlin of an official effort to remove from the capital the stigma that it is "provincial." The measure taken, by order of the emperor, is to refuse admission to the Royal opera house and the Royal theater to all except men in full evening dress and ladies decollete. Lest this might prove a hardship the theater kindly provided tailoresses prepared to reduce high-necked gowns "while you wait."

It is not necessary here to enter on a discussion of the merits of provincial and metropolitan customs—or the respective proprieties of high-neck and decollete. The aspect of the matter that appeals to us as of public concern is the propriety of having questions of dress settled by an imperial potentate and of having gowns altered arbitrarily in violation of the plans of the modiste who built them. This custom would hardly be approved by American theatergoers. Provincial or not, the American girl has well defined ideas of what she desires to wear and no imperial tailoresses will ever have occupation in ante-rooms to our play houses.

Moreover, the kaiser's plan, while it may give his opera house an appearance of metropolitanism, cannot exorcise the provincial spirit of his people. If they are provincial from choice they are likely to remain so, despite forced changes in their outward appearance at the theater entrance. We may take it, therefore, this is just another evidence of the kaiser's versatile activity, without malice and without lasting significance.

A Kansas Shut-Down.

Kansas oil producers, some of them, have at last discovered what is the matter with their industry, namely, too much oil. They are busy trying to organize a "shut-down," the frequent resort of Pennsylvania producers in the earlier days. They are having some success, but are handicapped by two main difficulties. First is the fact that a large portion of producers in the mid-continent field are new men in the business, who think it is all gold and who blame all their misfortunes on the Standard Oil Company. Second, the conditions in the territories are adverse because in some cases the government regulations require drilling and in others the fascination of drilling rich shallow territory is too attractive. Pipe line facilities have been more than doubled and even at 50 cents a barrel there is some profit in operating 50-barrel wells that are less than 600 feet deep.

In Pennsylvania oil history the most effective "shut-downs" were those forced by low prices. There was always a notable cessation of new work when the sheriff began to get busy and the supply men hesitated about extending credit. So in Kansas there is a decrease in operations where the balance is on the wrong side of the ledger. The decrease would be more marked if there were fewer "tenderfeet" in the business, men who cannot understand that an oil well can be a losing venture. Those who are most familiar with the business are pretty well convinced that the total of all oil produced in this country has cost a little more than it has brought in market. There may be a slight net profit since natural gas has been utilized, because wells formerly classed as failures are now valuable as fuel producers. Kansas will discover the facts in the fullness of time and will be sadder and wiser for the lesson.

No Russian Alliance.

More than one construction may be placed on the publication in Novoe Vremya of Hertzen's plea for an alliance between Russia and America. The Novoe Vremya is a semi-official newspaper in St. Petersburg and it can be assumed so conspicuous a publication has been inspired by high authority. It is not so easy to divine its purpose. Hertzen was exiled for the original publication, so its semi-official reproduction may signify a radical change in Russian official attitude toward his theories—a view that may be encouraged by the fact that Russia is to have a national assembly—or it may mean simply that Russia has a diplomatic end to gain.

Appearance of this matter on the eve of the meeting of the peace conference arouses a suspicion that it is intended more for consumption in this country than in Russia. Hertzen expressed himself in a way highly complimentary to the United States and its form of government. He urged on Russia consideration of the marvelous success achieved here and suggested adoption of some American forms preliminary to the proposed alliance, the basis being the long friendship between the nations. It is an article well calculated to reawaken American friendship and to balance the favor so strongly shown to the Japanese.

Whatever the purpose of the publication it may as well be understood that Hertzen proposed an impossibility. America makes no alliances. It keeps as far away from international entanglements as possible. It courts the friendship of every foreign power on honorable terms and desires to give to every nation, as to every man, "a square deal, no more and no less." That policy could not be maintained if it had alliances, for its obligation to an ally would forbid equal favor to another. Russia need expect no alliance in this quarter—just a square deal.

M. Witte remarked the other day that Russia and Japan had become acquainted on the battlefield. He has met the Japanese envoys under more pleasant conditions.

There are sweatshops in this city that menace the public health and they go right on until they become too foul to be tolerated by the factory inspectors.

In these dog days it is not necessary to become frightened by every cur that barks at your heels. Hydrophobia is a rare disease.

Admiral Charles E. Clark of Oregon fame has earned the retirement that will be his after next Thursday.

Treasurer Kelley is having the laugh at the expense of Gov. Hoch, who gave up the Kansas state funds as lost.

Pennsylvania is to have 400 days of farmers' institutes this year, without adopting a new calendar.

That new Lake Shore railroad will penetrate a picturesque as well as rich section of Pennsylvania.

The Post's effort to separate Justice John Stewart from the Republican party is the joke of the year.

Russian tramps are given a bath twice a year. We presume, of course, "whether they need it or not."

Kaiser Wilhelm is now regulating decollete costume in Berlin for lack of other occupation.

Still another tunnel for Pittsburgh rapid transit. New York's subway isn't so very much.

Juliette Adam's attack on M. Witte will hardly disturb the peace negotiations.

Baseball has gained no new honors by Saturday's display of New York temper.

Never mind the weather. We may have a long, cold winter presently.

President Roosevelt's vacation continues to resemble hard work.

Pittsburgh will also make steel trolley cars.

Obtuse, but Highly Humorous.

"Democratic Principles Are Popular," says Mr. Bryan, in the Commoner for August 4. He makes that declaration in big black letters as the title of his leading editorial. With characteristic obtuseness as to the humorous element in literature, Editor Bryan evidently sees nothing funny in making that loud and proud claim of popularity for the principles of a party that has had no proofs of popular regard for the last 13 years, and very few indications of the existence of such a sentiment since the election of James Buchanan to the presidency in 1856. That was 49 years ago. If Mr. Bryan, when facing an audience in a Chautauqua assembly or a Democratic gathering, would point to the official returns of elections during those 49 years, or even during the past 13 years, and, looking his hearers confidingly in the face, remark, "You see, my fellow-citizens, that Democratic principles are popular," wouldn't he bring down the house?—Washington Post.

Nut for Pessimists to Crack.

A story is told by Robert Ogden about a friend of his, not long dead, who held securities in a certain railroad. Being told, and from a source to leave no doubts, that the road was about to collapse, he refused to sell, not wishing to shift the loss upon a purchaser. He had no great amount of money, but he was rich in something better. With all the venal trickery that is being exposed, it is really refreshing to believe that men like this exist in America in larger numbers today than they did five, a dozen or twenty years ago.—New York Commercial.

A Remarkable Memory.

"Excuse me," said the absent-minded professor, "but haven't we met before? Your face is strangely familiar."

"Yes," answered the young lady, "our hostess introduced us just before dinner."

"Ah, yes," rejoined the professor; "I was positive I had seen you somewhere. I never forget a face."—Chicago News.

QUIET OBSERVATIONS

By ERASMUS WILSON.

"I wonder what the years will bring
When I am old and gray.
I wonder if the world will seem
Just as it does today?"

Haven't you wondered just so yourself, many a time?

Have you arrived at a satisfactory conclusion yet, or are you still wondering?

There are some things we can never know while here on earth, or in earth life, as some say. But that does not prove that we may not know in another life.

Just here bobs up that same question that has bothered the scientist, philosopher and prophet ever since such persons existed, "Is there another, or other, life?"

Among all civilized people, in all times, and under all religions, it has been conceded that human intelligence is immortal, and by many it has been and is now held to be progressive.

Pure reason leads to this conclusion, and that is about all we have to rely upon, save the words of Jesus, which are generally conceded to have been inspired of God. These words are final to His earnest, consistent followers, but not so to those who demand proofs positive, ocular and otherwise, for everything.

The arguments in favor of the immortality of the soul submitted by Socrates and Plato 300 years before the birth of Jesus seem to have covered the entire field, there having been none added since that are of any consequence. Yet we wonder still.

"I wonder what the years will bring
When I am old and gray.
I wonder if the world will seem
Just as it does today?"
—Mary Roberts Stevenson.

* * *

A sense sublime
Of something far more deeply interfused,
Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns,
And the round ocean and the living air
And the blue sky, and in the mind of man—
A motion and a spirit that impels
All thinking things, all objects of all thought,
And rolls through all things.
—Wordsworth.

Haven't you often thought about that "sense sublime," that "spirit that impels" your thoughts to fly away to the unknown, and prompts your mind to go in search of the great truth that underlies all things?

Matter we know is not eternal, therefore, no material thing can be everlasting. All matter changes, and so must all that is composed of matter.

This only prompts us to ask with greater earnestness and more seriousness that same old question, "If man dies, shall he live again?"

Admitting that he shall, then comes the agnostic wanting to know how he shall live, and where.

An agnostic is one that doesn't know—doesn't know in the sense of not being able to understand and to comprehend.

Who doth comprehend God?

The theosophist comes to the aid of the agnostic. But who can comprehend theosophy?

This word signifies wisdom concerning God, but those who have figured as exponents of the cult have mostly drifted into mysticism so dense and deep that only a baker's dozen or so have ever professed to be able to follow them.

* * *

Speaking of theosophy, however, recalls the fact that the number of those interested in this cult is considerable, and growing day by day. There is a society in New York city which is regarded as the parent organization.

This society practically ignores the mystical, accepting the term in its broad sense, the sense of knowledge concerning God, a desire to know of God and of man's relation to Him.

Mr. Percival, a leading member of this organization, gives the following outline of their teachings:

"The pivotal truth, which we never lose sight of, is that 'What a man soweth, that shall he also reap.' We make it plain that there is no escaping the law of divine justice; that it is not a far-away, hazy possibility, but an actual present fact. That what we have sown, that we must reap, and what we are sowing that we shall be obliged to reap. We also teach that death is but the laying down of one body in order to take up another and enter into new conditions, such conditions as by the life we have lived we are fitted for and therefore are capable of using.

"Do we ignore the Bible? By no means. The Bible is one of the greatest books, and when one knows something of all religions he better understands and appreciates it. The plain statements of the Bible are in perfect accord with the teachings of theosophy. Take, for example, the assertion, 'Except ye be born again ye can in no wise enter the kingdom of heaven.' In the original the word again means from back, or way back, and a legitimate translation would be again and again. This is a simple announcement of the doctrine of reincarnation.

"Our teachings for adults and children are, as to cardinal principles, the same; and there is but one essential difference between our instruction and that of other religionists, and that is: We are not content with assertions, but seek for the laws which govern in the more subtle realm of spirit, quite as does the scientist for those which control things physical. These laws, once they are understood, make everything plain, and they are as uniform as those that control the forces which to know makes modern civilization possible. As to faith, it is the evidence of things not seen by the physical eye, but which are the motive power of the universe, since the things that actuate are all, from the least to the greatest, viewless, save as they are seen by the eye of faith."

Again and again the question comes to us: Shall the world appear to us just as it does today?

This does not matter much, but when we die shall we live again? This is the great question that underlies all others pertaining to the future of man.

"The star is not extinguished when it sets
Upon the dull horizon; it but goes
To shine in other skies, then reappear
In ours, as fresh as when it first arose.
The river is not lost, when, o'er the rock,
It pours its flood into the abyss below
Its scattered force re-gathering from the shock,
It hastens onward with yet fuller flow.
The lily dies not, when both flower and leaf
Fade, and are strewed upon the chill, sad ground;
Gone down for shelter to its mother earth,
'Twill rise, re-bloom, and shed its fragrance round.
Thus in the quiet joy of kindly trust,
We bid each parting one a brief farewell;
Weeping, yet smiling, we commit their dust
To the safe keeping of the silent cell.
The day of re-appearing! how it speeds!
He who is true and faithful speaks the word.
Then shall we ever be with those we love—
Then shall we be forever with the Lord."

Closing the Baltic.

That the kaiser would like to close the entrance to the Baltic against all other powers than those with a Baltic coast is easily intelligible, and it can also be readily understood why the czar should feel the same way. Such a closure would protect the German and Russian shores against every possible enemy. For that very reason it will be opposed by the other maritime powers and there is little or no doubt that Great Britain would go to war to prevent its accomplishment were that to become necessary. But of this there is no visible or imaginable danger.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

TALKED OF IN GOTHAM

By FRANK A. PARKER.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Preparations are now under way for the opening of the fall term of the recreation centers of the greater city in October. During last week the eligible list of teachers was announced. This list shows the variety of things taught in these night schools, if they can be called schools, since the work is mostly in the line of play. During the past term there were 21 recreation centers, but the board of superintendents hopes to increase the number to 29 at the opening in October. The estimate of the number of teachers needed is on this basis, and the examinations were made with this idea in mind. From this estimate it would appear that provision is made for 23 principals, 21 librarians, 11 pianists, 80 teachers, 5 assistant teachers, 2 junior assistants and one teacher of swimming. In the list of teachers of gymnastics there are 61 names of eligibles, besides 7 assistants and 5 junior assistants.

There figures will give some idea of the amount of work that is being done in these recreation centers, but gives not even a vague notion of its value. The work is in charge of Miss E. E. Whitney, who devotes all her time to recreation centers, vacation schools and playgrounds. She takes the greatest possible interest in her work and she has a way of communicating her enthusiasm to those with whom she is surrounded. It is this faculty that makes her so successful.

Not Wholly for Children.

The recreation centers are not conducted wholly in the interest of the rising generation, but people—both men and women—of all ages are welcomed, and an effort is made to give them a broader view of life and their duties as citizens. And inasmuch as these schools are conducted in the most congested portions of the city, they reach a class of people who need this elevation. Hundreds of the attendants are immigrants who know very little of American life and American institutions, and they are given practically their first real insight into these things at the recreation centers. Their eagerness to learn is shown by the fact that they attend regularly and listen intently to whatever the teachers have to say to them.

Helping People to Help Themselves.

The recreation centers are largely valuable in that they help these people to help themselves. There are very few real study rules enforced, but the attendants are encouraged to put in the time in any way that suits them. All sorts of amusements are furnished, games and music, etc. Those who wish to sit and sew or knit are allowed to do so, and there is always someone handy to give them instructions. The libraries are the chief features, however, among the older attendants, and they are helped to read good literature understandingly. The magazines are on file, as well as good books plentiful on the shelves.

Keeps Boys Off the Streets.

Perhaps the chief value of the recreation center is that it furnishes a clean place of amusement for the boys of the streets, and for other boys who would become street urchins if their tastes and habits were left without a guiding hand. The gymnasiums are the great drawing cards for these boys, but before they can get the advantages of the gymnasiums they must be members of one of the various boys clubs that meet for an hour one or two evenings a week. In these clubs the boys are allowed to form their own organizations, elect their own officers and hold regular parliamentary debates without interference. There is always a teacher at hand to arbitrate any disputes that become serious, but he is not often called upon to act. The boys soon take a pride in their clubs, and watch each other as well as themselves.

Girls Go in for Quieter Evenings.

While there are athletics also for girls, they are not quite so strenuous as those arranged for the boys. They are just as useful for their physical welfare, however, and are a regular part of the work. But the girls seem to prefer the quieter game rooms and the reading rooms. For their amusement there are to be found checkers, dominoes and other games, and the tables are always well occupied. But many of them seem to prefer to sit and sew during the play hour, thus not only getting the benefit of instruction in sewing, but accomplishing something to add to their daily lives.

Streets Great Menace to Boy Life.

No one who knows the propensity of the street boy to grow up into anything but a useful citizen, when left to his own devices, will be surprised at the avidity with which people of the poorer sections of the city accept the idea of the recreation center. There is no place for the boys to play except in the streets, and the influences that surround them there can never be other than baneful. Therefore the recreation centers take a great care from the minds of the parents of these boys, as they know their sons will be looked after by their instructors. They know, too, that they are being encouraged to improve their minds and their bodies, as well as being helped to a healthier moral state.

Warned of the Danger Line.

"Would you have loved me if I had been poor?"

"Sure; now be satisfied and please don't ask me if I would have married you."—Houston Post.

ABOUT THE STATE

Mischief Makers.

Every community is cursed with the presence of busybodies, men and women who are never so happy as when they are sowing the seeds of discord among neighbors or starting a rumor that may set a whole community at odds before its sensible and conservative members have time to bring the truth to the front and expose the mischief makers. Sometimes one wonders why Providence permits such human wasps to exist, but there is probably a time coming when this, as well as all other mysteries that now stagger human nature, will be unfolded. No man or woman who loves peace and wishes the best possible results to follow each day's labor, will encourage the mischief maker.—Kittanning Free Press.

Stole the Beer.

Mr. Frank Marabito and Miss Phillipina Alasia, both of this place, were married at high noon Sunday at the bride's home in the rear of the store of Antonio Bianco on West Philadelphia street. In honor of the event the groom had purchased 10 kegs of beer on Saturday for the refreshment of the guests. When the liquid refreshment arrived Marabito placed it in a back room of his boarding house. Some Indiana characters who were evidently real thirsty and thought that the wedding party would be happy enough without the booze, broke a window of the room in which the beer was, and took six kegs of it. Then they took to the woods.—Indiana Gazette.

Looked Under the Bed.

On Saturday night a well-known young man of this place, who is in the habit of looking under his bed before retiring, upon raising the cover around the bed discovered what he thought to be the form of a man lying there. He immediately informed his wife, who was in an adjoining room, to be very quiet while he procured his revolver. His wife, however, could not keep the secret and burst forth in laughter. He at once perceived the secret of the joke and, going to the bed, he proceeded to drag forth the man, which was composed of a pair of trousers and a coat which were stuffed.—Penn Hawkeye.

Interesting Reunion.

A reunion of the connections of Mrs. Lydia Moorhead was held at the home of W. W. Moorhead, near Duncanville, on Thursday, and the gathering numbered 50. Mrs. Moorhead is aged 87 years, and the reunion was one of the most pleasant events of her life, as her eight children were present, in addition to 21 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. Many other relatives and friends were in attendance. At noon a tempting dinner was served, after which Rev. Elmer E. Hall, pastor of the East Mahoning Baptist church, made an appropriate address.—Indiana Progress.

Rubber for Soles.

A number of Italians employed about the furnace and pipe mill were arrested by Pennsylvania railroad officers on Saturday, charged with taking rubber hose from the cars, to be used in making soles for their shoes. When the air hose are cut open, they are said to make good material for shoe soles, and it is alleged that a number of cars have been deprived of the hose in the recent past, and an effort was made to locate the parties doing the stealing.—Scottdale Independent.

The Future Assured.

The future seems assured when the statistics of the births and deaths in the county for the last six months are considered. These reports have been filed with the clerk of courts and they show that the total number of deaths in the county is 938, while in the same period 838 children were brought into the world. Taking the ratio involved as a basis in 25 years the increase of the births over the deaths would be 27,550 and in 50 years 55,100.—Butler Item in Emlenton News.

One evening last week Harmonsburg was all wrought up over a lost child. Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Faust, accompanied by their little daughter, came in to do some trading. A little later they missed the child. ### When "Swallows Homeward Fly."

Unless swallow stories be like anglers' yarns, a bird belonging to an Antwerp gentleman has just established a record. A flight of homing pigeons had been arranged from Copenhagen to Antwerp. The swallow, caught by the gentleman from a nest under his own roof, and duly marked, was sent to Copenhagen and given its freedom with the pigeons at 7:15 o'clock in the morning. At 8:35 that same morning the swallow returned to its nest at Antwerp. It had covered the distance between the towns of just 145 miles in one hour and eight minutes, having, therefore, traveled at the extraordinary speed of two miles and some 300 yards per minute.—London Telegraph.

PICKED UP IN LOBBIES

Dr. Barchfeld Is Vindicated.

Congressman A. J. Barchfeld is getting ready to sail for Europe to take part in the deliberations of the international peace congress, which is to convene in Brussels, Belgium. Dr. Barchfeld will leave Pittsburgh on August 8, and will sail three days later. Of all the honors, political, professional and social which he has attained, the big congressman prizes none higher than his recent triumphant election to the presidency of the board of directors of the South Side hospital. The election took place on Wednesday. There was a very full attendance of members and the vote was unanimous. Dr. Barchfeld has been a member of the board for five years. During all that time he worked hard for the success of the institution, the work often being of the uphill variety. He had several hard contests on his hands in the board, and for voting for the removal from the staff of doctors who were members of the South Side Medical society he incurred the displeasure of that body and was expelled from it. He continued his policy, however, and is proud of the vindication just received. The new additions proposed to be added to the hospital became possible largely through the work and influence of Dr. Barchfeld.

Russians Are Venturing Home.

About 100 Russian immigrants left for New York last night on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad to sail for home. The Russians have been watching the progress of the war with Japan, and somehow they have arrived at the conclusion that the war is practically over. Many of those who left yesterday have had their money ready for some time and they bought their tickets as soon as they learned of the arrival of the Japanese and Russian peace commissioners in this country. In conversation with Americans at the station yesterday they said they would not have ventured to go back home earlier in the war, as they feared enforced conscription in the army, but now they say visit their old home without being forced to become soldiers.

Southern Travel at Travelers' Risk.

In the ticket offices of the Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania railroads placards are posted instructing agents as to their duties when prospective passengers ask for tickets to points in Florida, Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi. Unless such travelers are provided with a properly attested health certificate, showing a clean bill of health and their whereabouts for 10 days preceding, tickets will not be sold them. Those who purchase tickets under these conditions do so at their own risk of detention at southern points because of the yellow fever scare, and the money paid for transportation will not be refunded to them.

Grafts That Should Be Sifted.

There is universal approval of the determination to rout out the grafters, big and little, in the government departments. It is especially to be desired that, at the same time, an example be made of the officials who spend public time and money in securing information intended for general welfare and then sell it in the shape of illustrated magazine articles. This form of grafting is so petty that it may be overlooked in the consideration of offenses of greater moment. We hope, however, that it will receive attention. It concerns a condition of affairs which has become a scandal and which ought to be abolished without delay.—Washington Post.

At the Gate.

POINT AT ISSUE IS THE BATTERY

Naval Strategists at Loggerheads Over Guns for Two New Battleships.

VESSELS ARE ALREADY NAMED

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Although congress authorized last March the construction of two new battleships of 16,000 tons displacement, the board of construction at the navy department has not yet been able to agree on the general characteristics of these ships. The point at issue is the battery. Naval strategists have been generally converted to the belief that the most efficient gunfire is that obtainable from a battleship armed with 10 and 12-inch guns of intermediate calibre, and having for a secondary battery no guns larger than five-inch, these to be used against torpedo craft.

On consideration of this question, it quickly developed that a 16,000 ton battleship could not carry 10 12-inch guns. A burden of armament consisting of a dozen guns of this calibre is deemed out of the question if as much space is given to engine installation as is required by the best opinion of the bureau of steam engineering and to the various auxiliaries now necessary in a modern man-of-war.

In the designing of the newly-authorized ships, which will be called the South Carolina and the Michigan, there has developed the old difference of opinion between the construction bureau and the officers whose duty it will be to fight the ships when they are commissioned.

Many Plans Suggested.

Half a dozen plans of battery arrangement have been evolved. It is desired that the new battleships should have a broadside fire of six or eight guns. One arrangement provides for four turrets, each enclosing two 12-inch guns. One of these turrets would be forward and one aft, and the third and fourth amidship, on the starboard and port side. That would give six guns for broadside fire. Another proposition is that, in addition to the forward and aft turret, there should be two other turrets on each side of one gun, each on each side of the ship.

There was a tendency a few weeks ago on the part of some members of the board of construction to provide a battery of both 10 and 12-inch guns. This met with objection from officers who have been engaged in the study of gunfire, they contending best results could be obtained only from a main battery of the heaviest guns all of one calibre. As a sort of a compromise, some persons have suggested the adoption for these battleships of 11-inch guns. This calibre is not now in use in the United States navy and the very natural objection is made that to begin its manufacture would be to further complicate the ordnance situation.

May Build Larger Ships.

It is deemed now not improbable that Secretary Bonaparte will be asked to request congress at the next session to authorize the increase of the displacement of the Michigan and South Carolina.

The British admiralty has authorized two ships of 18,000 tons displacement, and although three years ago, when the Connecticut and Louisiana type of battleship was authorized, it was felt the limit of size had been reached, naval sentiment now seems favorable to still another upward step.

The action of congress is problematical. Two years ago Senator Hale expressed his positive view that ships the size of the Indiana and Oregon were large enough. His insistence caused a compromise, resulting in the authorization of two 13,500 ton battleships, the Mississippi and Idaho, which were generally regarded as makeshifts—not large and powerful enough nor sufficiently fast to serve with the best units of the fleet at sea, but superior to the older battleships which at present constitute the coast squadron, the duty of which it is to defend the bays and harbors of the Atlantic seaboard.

MISSING SCHOOL TEACHER FOUND IN MAINE WOODS

Mary A. Tucker Who Disappeared from Camp Ossipee July 25, Exhausted and Emaciated When Discovered—Asks for Milk, Then Collapses.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ROCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 6.—Miss Mary A. Tucker, the Providence school teacher for whom persistent search has been made since her disappearance from Camp Ossipee July 25, was found this afternoon in the woods of South Lebanon, Me., half a mile from a road leading from Blaisdells Corner, in East Rochester.

Miss Tucker was greatly exhausted and emaciated. Her pulse was strong, however, and her attending physician thinks she may recover. The woman was brought to a hotel in East Rochester, where she revived sufficiently to say to her rescuers: "I am so tired. I would like some warm milk." She then relapsed into semi-consciousness, in which condition she remained during the rest of the day.

Miss Tucker was found resting on her side on a pile of underbrush. Her clothing was soaked and her feet swollen. She wore a pair of new black high-laced shoes instead of low tan shoes, which she had on when she disappeared. Where she obtained the new shoes has not been learned.

GOVERNOR GOMEZ OPPOSED TO PALMA

Says Cuba Is a Powder Mine With Lighted Fuse Already Half Burned.

MODERATES ARE SATISFIED

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

HAVANA, Aug. 6.—Jose Miguel Gomez, governor of Santa Clara province, and Liberal candidate for the presidency of Cuba, has given out an interview full of defiance to the Palma government. With reference to the Vueltas case and the Cuban government's assumption of the right to inspect municipalities without reference to the provincial authorities, Governor Gomez says:

"I will not allow anyone excepting the provincial authorities to inspect the municipalities of this province. Should a municipality be governed by Moderates I would refuse my consent to this procedure just the same and would deliver justice to them if permitted justice.

"If the supreme court decides against the contention we are now maintaining we would not obey its mandate, because of its partiality in favor of executive authority. The court would be certain to be against us in order to increase its favor with the government."

Governor Gomez characterized the whole island as a powder mine containing a lighted fuse already half burned. He said that of the force of 3,000 rural guards half were inwardly in his favor. Military officers absolutely deny this statement and say that the only company of rural guards in which disaffection was shown was that of Santa Clara province, now removed to Havana, the captain of which resigned to avoid being disgraced.

The Moderates profess satisfaction at Gomez's statements, which they term sensational and reckless, and which they assert will certainly defeat him, as the Cubans will never elect a president who has defied the courts or sought to inculcate in the soldiers a rebellious spirit.

Automobile Strikes Trolley Car in New York—Conductor Only One Hurt.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Paul Morton, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, and Mrs. Morton had a narrow escape from serious injury tonight, when their automobile ran into an Eighth avenue car at Twenty-fourth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton were on their way across town with two friends whom they had met at the Pennsylvania Railroad depot, when, in attempting to avoid a southbound car, the wheels slipped and the machine struck the car a glancing blow. The conductor was thrown from the platform and slightly hurt and the automobile was temporarily disabled, but no further damage was done.

It was erroneously reported that this case had been decided by Judge Lacombe and that the decision was against the plaintiffs. The case has been pending several years.

GOVERNOR GOMEZ HAS BILL CHANGED, THEN ASSAULTED

William Sanderson of Pittsburgh, a Victim of Thugs in a Baltimore Street.

TRIPLE FRACTURE OF JAW

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

BALTIMORE, MD., Aug. 6.—William Sanderson, aged 34, who said he lives at Twenty-fourth and Sidney streets, Pittsburgh, Pa., is at the City hospital with his jaw broken in three places, a lacerated scalp and bruises on the face and head and body as the result of being held up and unmercifully beaten by two men on Pratt street, near the United Railways power house, early this morning.

Five minutes after Sanderson had received the awful trouncing Patrolman Kearns arrived, but the thugs had disappeared. To the policeman Sanderson said that a few minutes before 12 o'clock Saturday night he entered a saloon on Pratt street, near Gay, to get a $5 note changed. He also purchased a drink.

"As soon as I put my foot on the pavement after leaving the saloon," said Sanderson, "my face and head met a series of blows. I was thrown to the ground and kicked until I could hardly move or cry. I saw two men and each took a turn at punching or clubbing me. My face had been kicked and my jaw broken. They then picked me up, carried me across the street and threw me in a brick pile in the rear of the power house, apparently for dead."

When Patrolman Kearns arrived, attracted by the man's cries, he found Sanderson in a semi-conscious condition, with his face covered with blood, and he was groaning in agony. He was hurriedly removed to the hospital.

PREPARES REAL FEAST FOR SUNDAY READERS

Gazette Compiles a Journalistic Menu of Many Courses, Which Is Relished by Literary Epicures.

One department devoted especially to women, another which deals directly with those matters of peculiar interest to small boys and girls, articles which treat intricately with the question of high finance, tales of love, of war, of politics; fiction and fact, verse and picture; what a menu for a Sunday literary feast. And the Gazette had it all. It took a good many cooks and required considerable exploration to gather it all in one compact meal, but when the dinner bell rang all of the courses were ready to serve, and were gulped down with true literary gusto. The Sunday Gazette has the habit of spreading for its readers feasts of this kind. And then, as a kind of side dish, it spreads out facts relating to business conditions which are of acknowledged value. The news columns of The Sunday Gazette were brimming full of just the bright, crisp "stuff" which the average reader likes to "dawdle" over on a hot day. Some was important, some not so much so, but all was interesting.

Archbishop Chapelle is stricken with yellow fever in New Orleans. The government has taken charge of looking after the city's health. Secretary of War Taft and Miss Alice Roosevelt, with their party, received a warm welcome in Manila.

A second tunnel designed to reach Oakland is projected by the Flinn interests. A mammoth plant is to be erected at McKees Rocks for the construction of steel traction cars. Entrance of new interests believed to represent the West Penn Railway company has stirred up a warm traction fight in Brownsville. Broker W. W. Patrick defended a suit to recover on stock transactions by saying they were only bucket shop deals. Woman asked for inquiry into the habits of her husband who, she said, is unfit to manage his estate. Pennsylvania railroad is said to be behind the recent heavy purchase of Philadelphia Company stock. Thirteenth ward school board called off a $350,000 bond election set for August 22. The discovery of human bones caused alarm in the Hill district. Requisition papers were issued to bring Frank Hodge back from Buffalo. Etta Connolly sued the Standard Automobile Company for damages, claiming she was run down by one of its machines. Nearly 20,000 baseball enthusiasts hooted the New York players when they refused to play out the game, and a riot was narrowly averted.

There was a record-breaking crowd at the final contest between the Pirates and the Giants. Seymour still leads the National league in batting, with Hans Wagner as his nearest competitor. Some lively prize fights are carded for the near future on the coast. The Philadelphia Athletics are leading in the American league and the New Yorks and Boston seem to have finally struck their speed. Many Pittsburgh horsemen will attend the Grand Circuit races to be held in Buffalo this week.

The New York stock market was almost stagnant. Wheat was weak.

BIRDS' PROTECTOR IS SLAIN FOR SAKE OF WOMEN'S FAD

Warden of Audubon Societies Falls Victim, It Is Alleged, to Deadly Plot of Plume Hunters on Island Off Florida.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Woman's desire to wear on her bonnet pretty egrets plucked from the slain bodies of plume birds of southern Florida, and the avariciousness of men to obtain the money she so willingly pays for the dainty adornments, are credited with being the causes which led to the killing of Guy M. Bradley, warden of the National Association of Audubon Societies, on a lovely island off Florida, 40 miles from Key West, July 8.

According to details of the killing received by officers and members of the National association in this city, it is alleged Bradley was the victim of a plot. Walter Smith, a professional plume hunter, who is in the Key West jail awaiting action of the grand jury, is accused of being the willing instrument of his colleagues in getting rid of the man who stood relentlessly for the protection of the birds.

Smith asserts he shot Bradley in self-defense. His two sons, who were with him, corroborate his statements. The finding of the body, its condition, and the surrounding circumstances, however, leave much to be explained.

Smith's story of the shooting is that he and his sons went to Oyster Key, a small island near that on which Flamingo is situated, and while he stood by in his boat, his two sons went ashore to hunt. It happened that Bradley was on their track. Soon after the boys went ashore he appeared in his boat. When the boys came back he put the older one under arrest. Smith says he objected to the arrest, and asserts Bradley drew his revolver and shot at him, whereupon he quickly reached for his rifle and fired. Bradley fell back into his boat and tried to fire again, but could not.

Friends and relatives of Bradley assert there is no evidence to show Bradley fired his revolver, as its chambers were full when found. It is further argued that, as he was a sure shot, Smith would have been hit had he opened fire on him.

"Bradley is a martyr to the cause of bird protection," said William Dutcher of this city, who is president of the National Association of the Audubon Societies and who, in behalf of the association, has retained State Senator Harris of Key West, to prosecute Smith. "Heretofore the price has been the life of the birds; now human life is added. Bradley was noble and brave, a lover of birds and an enthusiast in their protection. Yet he was cut off in a moment, and for what? That a few more plume birds might be obtained to adorn the bonnets of heartless women."

HIGH WATER MARK IN STEEL EXPORTS

Some Items Show an Increase of Almost Fifty Per Cent Over Month of June.

SOUTH AMERICA BUYS RAILS

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, Aug. 6.

The exports of Pittsburgh iron and steel material reached high water mark in July, the tonnage in some items showing an increase over the previous month of almost 50 per cent. In all, nearly 43,000 tons of steel rails, billets, beams, blooms, hoops, wire, wire nails and pipe were consigned to different parts of the world through New York and other eastern seaboard points, in addition to big lots going overland from the various plants of the United States Steel Corporation via the Pacific coast to the far east.

Twenty-four thousand nine hundred and twenty tons of steel rails went abroad, compared with 18,880 tons during June. The total shipments of wire, wire nails and pipe aggregated nearly 11,000 tons in July, whereas, in the previous month they amounted to but 8,766 tons.

The rail shipments went chiefly to the Argentina Republic, Mexico and Panama, while new markets were secured for wire products in southern Russia. The different countries to which shipments of Pittsburgh iron and steel material went forward in July are Mexico, Panama, Brazil, Argentina Republic, Chile, South Africa, China, Japan, Russia, the Philippines, Cuba, Finland, Norway, Sweden, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Australia, United Kingdom, Denmark, Italy and Turkey.

Ten thousand two hundred and eighty-four tons of rails went to the Argentina Republic. To Mexico, 6,359 tons were forwarded. To Colon, 3,889 tons were shipped, while 1,553 tons went to Formosa. Cuba was shipped 1,181 tons. Chile, Brazil and Australia were also shipped lots of fair sized proportions, and 435 tons were consigned to Belfast and Liverpool.

The billet exports last month reached 5,613 tons, 3,815 tons of which went to Liverpool, 1,198 tons to Manchester, while Swansea took the balance. The July consignments of beams, blooms, hoops, etc., amounted to about 2,000 tons.

The wire shipments made up a total of 5,037 tons. The best buyers in this department were Australia and the Argentina Republic, Antipodean ports having been shipped 1,590 tons, including one lot of 913 tons, while 1,442 tons were forwarded to Buenos Ayres. To Europe, 813 tons were shipped, mostly to the continent, Antwerp leading as a port of entry with 389 tons. Other lots went to Rotterdam and Christiania. The British points of distribution were Bristol, London, Glasgow, Leith and Liverpool. Three hundred and eighty-nine tons went to South Africa, while Brazil and Chile were forwarded 295 tons in about equal proportions. Two hundred and nineteen tons went to Cuba; Mexico was shipped 178 tons, and smaller lots went to China and Japan.

Two thousand and eighty-one tons of nails were consigned abroad in July, 1,051 tons of which went to Europe—chiefly the United Kingdom—where 925 tons were forwarded. London and Belfast took the major portion. The continental ports of entry were Copenhagen and Varna.

Five hundred and sixty-four tons were sent to Japan. Australia was a purchaser to the extent of 249 tons. Chile, Cuba, Singapore, Manila and Capetown were also made consignments.

The pipe shipments represented 3,639 tons, 1,811 tons going to Europe, Antwerp taking 903 tons, Rotterdam 248 tons, Liverpool 244 tons, Manchester 113 tons, Gothenburg 153 tons, while lots also went forward to Genoa, Hamburg, Constantinople, Helsingfors, Malmoe, Stockholm and Christiania.

Seven hundred tons were shipped to Cuba, 405 tons to Japan, 313 tons to Australia and 295 tons to Mexico. Smaller parcels were sent to South Africa, Chile and the Philippines.

FLEEING NEGRO CAUGHT.

Man Who Slashed a Woman's Throat at Wheeling, Captured While on a Jo-boat.

WHEELING, W. VA., Aug. 6.—(Special.)—After a fruitless all-night search, William Weaver, the mulatto, who slashed the throat of Mrs. Mary Zercher, white, at this place yesterday, was captured this morning. He was rowing up the river in a jo-boat accompanied by a white man and a white woman from Martins Ferry, when two men from the Virginia fishing camp rowed out from the shore and asked the party to surrender.

Weaver made a show of resistance and brandished a knife, but when threatened by an uplifted oar of one of the campers gave up. He was taken to jail. Mrs. Zercher is still living. She refuses to say anything about the cause of the shooting.

Excellence and Elegance.

Mr. G. T. Bell, general passenger and ticket agent of the Grand Trunk railway system, is frequently in receipt of communications from patrons eulogizing the service that is found on Canada's great double track railway. An unsolicited letter of recent date reads as follows:

"I have just returned from the Pacific coast and it may interest you to know that my wife and I immensely enjoyed the run over your road, and you must admit that when a woman is pleased and delighted, she receives something that has the classic touch of excellence and elegance. I am inclined to think that the railroad that pleases a woman is pretty near perfection."

Another letter from a physician of Aiken, South Carolina, reads:

"I had the pleasure of traveling over your line from Portland, Me., to Detroit, Mich., and have no hesitation in saying that your roadbed is one of the smoothest I have ever been on and the night from Montreal to Toronto, the train was as steady as if one had been in a hotel."

The travel over the Grand Trunk is increasing every year and as the excellence of this railroad is becoming known more and more, travelers from all parts are taking the opportunity of riding on the fast trains which this line is noted for in Canada and over their double track route between the principal cities of the east and west.

J. F. McMorris, Sole Distributer of Anheuser-Busch Products.

The recent appointment of J. F. McMorris of Pittsburgh, who has been in the beer bottling and liquor business for many years, as sole distributer of the Anheuser-Busch beers in this city, will doubtless mark a greatly increased demand for the celebrated beers of this noted St. Louis Brewing association.

The Anheuser-Busch beers have the largest sale of any beers in the world. They are noted for their purity and healthfulness.

Budweiser, their principal brand of bottled beer, is the most popular bottled beer—its sale is more than that of all other bottled beers combined, reaching in 1904 the enormous total of 130,388,520 bottles.

The Anheuser-Busch beers can now be obtained at all the leading clubs, hotels, cafes and bars throughout Pittsburgh, suburban towns and cities, and the trade will be supplied by Mr. McMorris, 512 Grant street.

HENRY LEGLEITNER IS NAMED CHIEF MARSHAL OF LABOR DAY PARADE

Chief Marshal Henry W. Legleitner.

Adjt. William Smith.

Officers for the Labor Day parade were elected yesterday afternoon by the Labor Day committee at a special meeting at 412 Diamond street. Henry W. Legleitner of the housesmiths was chosen as chief marshal; Morris Breen of the bridge and structural iron workers, as chief of staff, and William Smith of the horseshoers, as adjutant.

The meeting was conducted by N. S. Glass, chairman, and G. H. Drivers, secretary. There were three candidates in the field for chief marshal, including Michael Gallentine of the bridge and structural iron workers and W. J. Burke of the order of railway conductors. Legleitner has been a candidate for the position for the last three years and he had a close victory over Gallentine. It was estimated at the meeting yesterday there would be over 15,000 men in line of parade.

SWELL CLOTHES MADE IN UNSANITARY SHOPS

Deputy Factory Inspector Turns More Light on the Evils of the Tenements.

H. C. O'Donnell, special deputy factory inspector, whose work in Pittsburgh sweatshops has attracted much attention among reformers, last night addressed the Men's club of the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal church on "The Toilers of the Tenements." Mr. O'Donnell gave a synopsis of the evils of child labor and described in detail the work which is being accomplished in Pittsburgh in tenement improvement. He said in part:

The sweatshop in Pittsburgh has a large significance. It has come to be the generic name of a species of factory wherein foreigners crowd without regard to the decencies of life and work irregularly. For instance, there is a workroom which is called a "back" shop. In such a place as many as a half dozen men get together and rent a large room, each paying a pro rata share of the rental. Each will have his own set of employes, every gang working independently and with no concern for the other. These places I consider the very worst of sweatshops. As a matter of fact I found them more filthy and more crowded than in the hundreds of tenement workshops I visited. You will find any number of these "back" shops in Smithfield, Liberty, Wood and Diamond streets and in Penn and Fifth avenues.

Two in particular in Smithfield street, occupying the upper stories of business blocks, we found so filthy and unsanitary that we closed them down and ordered a general housecleaning. And, behold you, in these two establishments were made the clothing that adorn the forms of the swell and fastidious gentlemen of your city. It has become the practice for high-class merchant tailors to send garments to be finished in sweatshops. In many instances they do not even inquire into the character of these domestic workshops where filth and disease are often in evidence. And yet a sense of decency and a consideration of the rights of their customers should prompt these men to assure themselves that the clothing they intrust to persons outside their establishments ought to be free from pollution and contamination.

The factory laws specifically state that no person, firm or corporation engaged in the manufacture or sale of clothing or other wearing apparel shall bargain or contract with any person, firm or corporation for the manufacture, or partial manufacture, of any articles or goods where the same are to be made in any kitchen, living room or bedroom, in any tenement house or dwelling house unless the said workshop shall have been inspected by the chief factory inspector or by one of his deputies, and who shall issue a printed permit to the person in charge of such workshop, stating that the same is in a clean and sanitary condition.

MOSQUITOES ARE GREATEST CURSE NEXT TO WHISKY

Eminent British Scientist Commends the Yankees for Advancing First the Theory of Yellow Fever Infection by the Pests.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—"Next to whisky, mosquitoes are the greatest curse of mankind," said Sir Patrick Manson, K. C. M. G., at the Holland house today. Sir Patrick, who is the physician and medical adviser to the British colonial office, and eminent because he was the first physician to discover that the mosquito was the host of the malarial parasite at one stage of its existence, arrived, with Lady Manson, on the Lucania from Liverpool yesterday. He will leave tomorrow afternoon for San Francisco, where, before the Cooper Medical college he will deliver a series of lectures on "Tropical Diseases."

Arriving in this country when yellow fever is raging in New Orleans, and one case at least has developed in the harbor of New York, the opinion of Sir Patrick was sought today as to the danger of the spread of the disease in the north.

"There should not be the slightest danger," he said, "from the case now at Swinburne island. It is to be presumed your health physician has already enclosed the patient by mosquito bars, for in no other way can the disease be transmitted to another. If other cases should develop in the passengers or crews of the steamships which are constantly arriving from infected ports, the danger would not be increased, for the treatment would remain the same, and the spread of the disease stopped.

"We are yet in the infancy of the discoveries of the transmission of such diseases by insects, but in the matter of yellow fever infection all credit should be given to the Yankees who went ahead of our eminent men and demonstrated the stegoma was the vehicle that caused all the trouble. Therefore, I repeat, keep out the mosquitoes—the stegoma, the yellow fever carrier, and the anopheles, the malaria breeder—and do not despise the health-destroying powers of the culex, the common fellow who is so plentiful and persistent in the majority of places.

YELLOW JACK IS AT NEW YORK

Sailor Dies from the Dread Scourge at the City's Detention Hospital.

THIRD CASE THIS SUMMER

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—One man died of yellow fever at New York's detention hospital at quarantine today, making the third case of yellow fever discovered on ships entering New York this summer, and the second death.

"This is the first time in five years," said Health Officer Doty, "that New York has been threatened by more than one yellow fever case in a summer. William B. Smith, a pantryman, taken off the steamer Advance, from Colon, last Thursday with nine other suspects, died today with an acute case of yellow fever. Seven other members of this party are still under inspection, but I am positive they are not suffering from yellow fever. The other two yellow fever patients came here early in the summer."

Not one of these fever cases, said Dr. Doty, has come from the fever districts in the United States. Panama has supplied them all, and this is the first time since 1897, according to the official health records at the port of New York, that fever cases from Panama have been either threatening or numerous.

"Pantryman Smith," said Dr. Doty today, "is only the third case out of fully 200 suspects who have been taken off from ships here. His death today, which came so suddenly we could not even learn where his family is, proves that the thermometer is not the only safeguard against yellow fever entering New York, but almost a perfect protection."

Appeared in Good Health.

Up to last night Smith had apparently as good a chance of life as any of the 197 other fever suspects, who have spent a few days at quarantine, laughing at fever suspicions, and gone away in perfect health.

The pantryman was discovered Thursday among a row of the Advance sailors lined up for medical examination. He was laughing louder than the others at the examination, and when Dr. Doty removed the thermometer from him, with an indicated temperature of 102, he made the test a second time to be sure there was no error, so healthy did Smith appear.

Taken to the detention hospital at Swinburne island, Smith retained his chaffing good nature until Friday morning. Then he gave in and admitted that since about last Monday he had been feeling ill. Up to Saturday night, under the mosquito-proof netting where each of the fever suspects is isolated, Dr. Doty says Smith was apparently as well off as any of the other men from the Advance, who had only slight attacks of malarial fever. Last Saturday evening, however, Smith grew suddenly worse. This morning he could no longer speak, and before noon he died.

Will Cremate Victim.

The program with the yellow fever dead is cremation, and this will be carried out with Smith's body Monday. The steamship company which employed him will be asked to look up the pantryman's relatives.

There are at quarantine 19 other persons who were taken off ships because their temperatures were higher than the degree fixed as the lowest danger signal for yellow fever suspects used in examining the ships which enter New York. Only two of these persons are from New Orleans. All except one of the others are from the Panama district. Dr. Doty says the two from New Orleans will be released within another day, and that there is not the least danger any of the suspects have been suffering from anything worse than malarial fever.

At the hospital on Swinburne island, where only those patients actually suffering from some sort of fever are taken, there are still 16 men, all members of ships' crews. Three of them are from the Seguranca, six from the Avona and seven from the Advance.

"The death of Smith today," Dr. Doty said, "I regard merely as an isolated case, which has not in the least jeopardized the safety of other persons at quarantine."

At Hoffman island, the detention station for persons who are not actually ill, but who are under suspicion, all the suspects were released today, two from the El Paso from New Orleans and one from the steamer Ligonier from Port Arthur, Texas.

Why Not

Give your heart the same attention you do the other organs?

If your stomach, lungs, liver, kidneys or any other organ is in trouble, refuses to work, you hasten to repair them.

The heart never refuses as long as it has power to move, but continues to do the best it can, getting weaker and weaker, until it is past repair, and then stops. It is just as sick as the other organs, and needs help, but because it will work, you let it.

This is wrong. If your heart is weak, you should take to strengthen your heart and enable it to overcome Dizziness, Palpitation, Short Breath, Faint Spells, Pains in Heart and Side, and all other Heart difficulties.

"I had palpitation of the heart so bad that I would faint away. My doctor recommended Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and it helped me from the start."

GAMES TODAY.

Boston at Pittsburgh (2 games).
New York at Chicago.
Brooklyn at St. Louis.
Philadelphia at Cincinnati.

Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh club, yesterday announced that New York will probably have to pay a fine of $1,000 for leaving the field at Exposition park in Saturday's game. According to Dreyfuss the fine must be paid within 10 days. The board of directors will act on the matter. The board consists of Dreyfuss of Pittsburgh, Brush of New York, Hart of Chicago and Soden of Boston. These directors will mail their votes or decisions to President Pulliam of the National league.

Dreyfuss yesterday spoke as though New York will be called upon to pay the fine, although the opinion is prevalent among the patrons and those who keep in close touch with baseball politics, that the board of directors will waive the fine, inasmuch as the trouble occurred in the ninth inning. Had the fracas broken out earlier in the contest, or at the stage where the spectators would have demanded their money returned, New York would be more liable to a fine. But as it was, the game was finished, and none of the 18,000 spectators demanded their money back.

The umpires, Bauswine and Emslie said they made the decision, but yesterday Dreyfuss said Bauswine told him he had called Ritchey safe in the ninth. Bauswine said he held out his hand as an indication that Ritchey had beaten the throw. Ritchey told Dreyfuss he had beaten the play.

The play has brought forth more discussion than probably any other decision of the year. The New York players are censured by the more partisan fans, but those who have had experience on the diamond, maintain that the Giants were in the right by not playing until they had heard a decision. They did not know whether Ritchey was safe or out, and they refused to play until the umpires, or one of them, decided the play either way.

PITTSBURGH BOYS ARE SHOWING HIGH CLASS

Pittsburgh boys are doing well in the American association. One authority in discussing players of that organization who are t for faster company picks Sam Brown, the West Newton boy, and Bill Marshall, as catchers. Brown catches for Columbus and Marshall for Minneapolis. Marshall is one of the best catchers ever turned out in this section. Homestead has not had his equal since he left. According to the dopester these players show class:

Pitchers—Feine, Toledo; Dougherty, Goodwin and Hickey, Milwaukee; Stovall and Ford, Minneapolis; Frantz and Isbell, Kansas City; Dorner, Berger and possibly Veil, Columbus; Ferguson and Kenna, Louisville. Catchers—Marshall and Schmidt, Minneapolis; Sam Brown, Columbus; Noonan, St. Paul. First base—Freeman, Minneapolis. Second base—Brashear, Louisville; Marcan, St. Paul. Third base—Moriarity, Toledo; Clark, Milwaukee, and possibly Wheeler, St. Paul. Shortstop—O'Brien, St. Paul; Quinlan, Louisville. Fielders—Dave Jones, Minneapolis; Pickering, Columbus; Thoney, Indianapolis; O'Neill, Milwaukee; Charlie Hemphill, St. Paul; Cassaday, Toledo; Clay, Louisville, and Coulter, Minneapolis, and Frank Hemphill, of Milwaukee, for trial. For all-around player, Bateman, of Milwaukee club.

The above list shows those players who are fit for trial for fast company, but there are only a few of them who would make good, as is proven every year when a string of them are sent back to the minors for more seasoning. Of those who may be considered ripe right now for the big leagues and worthy of a good trial in fast company the following list may sound better: Pitchers—Dorner, Stovall, Feine and Berger, of Columbus, for an extra pitcher. Catchers—Brown and Marshall. First base—Freeman. Second base—Brashear. Third base—Moriarity. Shortstop—O'Brien. Fielders—Pickering, Jones, Thoney, C. Hemphill and O'Neill.

Henry Clay, of Louisville, who last year led the Tri-State batters, is at the head of the Association hitters. The .300 hitters and players known in this section follow:

McAleer Likes the Big Boys.

Jimmy McAleer, manager of the St. Louis Americans, in discussing his plans for next year, said anent signing youngsters: "My plans? No scout ever tips his hand. I am going from circuit to circuit in search of players and I have not prepared a schedule. I have had several pointers, but there will be no deals made until I inspect the parties that have been offered to McAleer. I'll take you into my confidence to this extent: I will be influenced by the size of players. The big fellows are more valuable than the midget and medium-size boys. Don't get the impression that I want to stock the St. Louis club up with giants. I prefer tall, rangy fellows that are not clumsy, but, of course, if a man of small stature has the class, I'll put my O. K. on him."

Chance for Local Pitchers.

Harvey Hollis, late of McKeesport, or Tommy Hughes, recently of the Braddock team, will be added to the Youngstown pitching corps. Jack Dolan, the dean of the Youngstown pitching corps, had his hand split in Saturday's game, which leaves the pitching department in a crippled condition. Tommy Thomas and Cecil Armstrong are both on the sick list.

Sam. Brown Improving.

Sam. Brown, the well known local catcher who is with Columbus, is able to go on the field and take part in the practice. He was in a Columbus hospital the greater part of this season with a bad leg. It is likely he will be in the game soon.

Homestead at McKeesport.

Homestead plays at McKeesport today. This is the 12th game between these clubs, McKeesport winning 6 and Homestead 5. Duff will likely pitch for McKeesport and Johnson for Homestead. Cincinnati plays at McKeesport Monday, August 14.

COATESVILLE IS DISBANDED; OTHER TRI-STATE GOSSIP

COATESVILLE, Aug. 6.—The Coatesville Tri-State baseball team has disbanded. This announcement was made today and came as a great surprise to the baseball enthusiasts of this place. The reason given for the disbandment was the alleged unfair treatment Coatesville received in other towns on the circuit, especially in the western towns on the last trip. At Williamsport, it is claimed, Coatesville was deliberately robbed of two games, and at Harrisburg the same thing happened. Postmaster A. H. Swing says:

"It was a case of going down into the stockholders' pockets for funds to support the team which, robbed by poor umpires and treated unfairly, it was anything to beat Coatesville. We do not mind paying for honest sport, but we do not propose to stand the treatment we have received in the Tri-State league."

All the players have been paid in full and released, so far as the Coatesville Athletic association is concerned.

Manager Stettler says he was notified about 3 o'clock this afternoon that the team had quit. He expects the franchise to be transferred to some other town, probably Reading. It is said the team was costing over $100 a day. Pitcher Jackson and Centerfielder Smith were in Philadelphia today with the manager of the Detroit club, and may sign with that team.

Outfielder Pleiss is a new man on the Harrisburg team. He has succeeded Left Fielder Hartman, who is said to be sore on the city and is anxious to get away. Several times Hartman has failed to play his usual good game, notwithstanding he has had outs and assists and has also hit. He told Manager Hamilton a number of times to get someone else.

A shortstop is on his way to Harrisburg who will succeed Connaughton, who has been playing poorly and has not been able to hit in good form.

First Baseman Calhoun of Harrisburg is out of the game with a sprained ankle and may not play for two weeks. Ernst is filling the bag in a satisfactory manner. Capt. Calhoun is missed. Bonner has been captaining the team during his absence.

With Leary, Campbell, Brackenridge and Falkenberg on the pitching staff, Harrisburg has an aggregation that cannot be equaled. Leary is back in the game and as popular as ever.

Wiltse on first base, O'Neill in right field and McGlynn in the box, while Lloyd covered second base, was the disposition made of all of York's pitchers in one of the games during the past week. It is recognized by Manager Heckert that too many pitchers in the game spoil the broth and make a mess of it, but it was only an emergency that forced this combination in the team of the champions.

Stony McGlynn of York is recognized as one of the most useful men in the Tri-State ranks. He is a hard and faithful worker, willing at any time to go in the box or on a base, just so his team can win. He would play any number of games in succession if such a thing were needed.

Sebring, Lush and Hinchman of Williamsport make an outfield that is hard to beat.

Bresslerr, who got into the game for Williamsport last Tuesday, was in the game long enough to do one of his characteristic stunts. He took a fly about six inches from the ground, turned a somersault and came up with the ball in his hand.

Coatesville has played more extra-inning games than any other team in the league, and has won a majority of them. With Altoona alone Coatesville has played eight extra-inning contests, including three that lasted 16 innings, two 11 innings, one 12 innings and one 15 innings.

Almost every time Sharpe of Coatesville makes a long hit those who follow fail to bring him home. Buddy has been left on bases oftener than any other player on the team.

Agents of the American association were in Altoona during the week trying to do business with Altoona players. An effort was made to entice Dick Tibbetts away, but the popular outfielder remained loyal.

ZOO WON'T HAVE STRING TO PETS

Does Not Board Them During Summer Vacation, but Will Accept Them as Gifts.

MANY DONATIONS ARE MADE

The Highland park zoological garden became the richer by six animals yesterday. It is estimated that since June 1 150 birds and beasts have been presented to the zoo. The arrival of vacation time always is the signal for an increase by gift of the population of the zoo. In that respect the Pittsburgh institution is luckier than that of New York, for while in the latter city the animal population grows larger in summer, it is not a permanent increase.

For years the New York zoo has made a practice of receiving on deposit the animal and bird pets of families leaving the city for the summer, the authorities arguing that the pets are interesting to visitors to the parks, while the care taken of them at the zoo is an accommodation to citizens and taxpayers. On the return of the families to their homes the pets are given back to them. The New York zoo also receives a large animal population in winter, some of the circus owners leaving their rare specimens there, thus pleasing visitors, while saving themselves the cost of the keep of the animals.

The practice is not followed in Pittsburgh. Out at the zoo it is said that family pets temporarily housed there might die or get sick, and therefore the zoo authorities do not care to run chance of being confronted by an irate owner of a defunct parrot or by some small boy crying over the untimely demise of his white rat.

Therefore, when an owner of a pet calls, expecting that his bird or animal will be taken care of until the return of his family, he is informed of the unalterable law and usually compromises by giving the animal to the zoo. Unfortunately, pets are usually small animals and of those the zoo has a sufficiency. Head Keeper Tretow would welcome a change in the fashion and gladly receive lion cubs, wildcats, wolves, ostriches, kangaroos and five-toed sloths.

Yesterday's donations were a coyote from No. 14 engine company, which, of course, is not going on vacation, but which has found the animal too vicious to maintain at the engine house; a mud hen, from Columbiana, O.; a blacksnake, from T. C. Adams; a parrot, which Frederick Stalnek of 4442 Penn avenue has had for 10 years, and which is an excellent conversationalist; a Brazilian parrot and a white rat, from Mrs. J. W. Wilson, 115 Homewood avenue.

Very few visitors were in Schenley park yesterday. There was a large crowd in Highland park. The storm which came up at 3:30 p. m. swept Schenley without rain, but the clouds emptied themselves over Highland, and there was a great rush of visitors to the shelter house, the zoo buildings and the street car barn.

Big throngs were at Kennywood. Fine concerts were given by Lieut. Peter Dannhardt's Second Brigade band. Leon Prevost, as cornet soloist, was applauded generously. The descriptive numbers, "The Forge in the Forest" and Kuecken's "The Warrior's Return," proved very pleasing numbers. The tree attraction was the Millinan trio of aerial contortionists, whose turn on high trapeze is a thriller. The band and performers will remain all week.

It was Monongahela valley day at Calhoun. Over 2,000 excursionists came down from upriver towns. The Charleroi Concert band furnished the instrumental entertainment. A feature of the band program was the rendition of the sensational descriptive number, "The Haunted House." Assisting in entertaining Calhoun's patrons were Buskirk and Rich, comedy musicians; Joe Hardman, monologist, and Harry and May Howard, dancing and talking comedians.

The Fourteenth Regiment band, directed by Vincent D. Nirella, attracted large crowds to Southern park both afternoon and evening. One of the "hits" on the band program was the playing of a new descriptive number, "The German Politician." Miles and Raymond, comedians, and the Bartells, refined musical and singing artists, added much to the worth of Southern's bill.

Oakwood park's program included the Knights of Pythias band, Maj. Hendershot and son and Baby Owen and company. The latter act, featuring Baby Owen, the phenomenal child artist, more than made good.

CELEBRATION BY ITALIANS IN HONOR OF A SAINT

The Italians of Braddock, Rankin and Swissvale celebrated yesterday in honor of Our Lady of Mount Carmel by a parade, athletic events and mass at the Church of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel. About 300 Italians were in the parade, which passed through Swissvale and Rankin to the Braddock church. The Rev. Francis Bonaventano celebrated mass. In the afternoon an athletic program was carried out at Rankin, near the Carrie blast furnace. A display of fireworks will be the feature of today's celebration.

Safe Robbers Interrupted; Escape.

The office of J. G. Weir & Son at 1325 Liberty avenue, was entered by two men shortly after last midnight. They broke off the combination of the safe, had the door open and were about taking the money drawer from its compartment, when interrupted by Officer John Konbowen. One of the men ran out and was grabbed by Hugh Lavery, who fell, and the thief escaped. The other jumped from a second-story window and ran up Spring alley, escaping.

Gas Explosion Injures Four.

CALEDONIA ONT., Aug. 6.—Twenty-two people were buried in the debris of two buildings which were wrecked by an explosion of acetylene gas today. Twenty of the people buried were in the employ of the Bell telephone agency. Four were fatally injured.

CZAR'S OFFICERS LACK TRAINING

Japanese Commander Says Their Naval Defeat Is Due Chiefly to This.

GUNNERY WINS THE FIGHT

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

TOKYO, July 9.—Commander Akiyama, who participated in the battle of the Sea of Japan, has prepared for publication an extended statement relating to the great conflict, and its weight is on the side of gunnery, the battleships and tactics, as against the destroyer and the torpedo.

The commander prefaces his statement by declaring that good gunnery depends mainly on the division officers. He asserts the Russian officers were lamentably lacking in training. In the early part of the battle the Russians scored but one hit to three landed by the Japanese. Under those circumstances, it may be said the Japanese had three or four guns in action to every one of the Russians, and there was, therefore, nothing very remarkable about the disparity of losses.

The commander says Admiral Rojestvensky should not be criticised for electing to take his chances at Tsushima. On the contrary, it was the wisest course open to him. Tsugaru strait is long and narrow, the season was foggy and there were mechanical obstructions. Distance and coal were against Soya, and the time consumed in reaching that entrance would have betrayed the design and his plight on emerging from Soya would have been much worse than he might reasonably hope for at Tsushima.

Russians' Great Mistake.

The commander insists that the great mistake of the Russians was in marshaling their vessels in double column, line ahead. From the moment of going into action in this formation the Japanese regarded victory as assured. Apart from the impossibility of maintaining an orderly formation when pursuing such tactics for defensive purposes, there was the fact that only a few of the ships could bring their guns into effective action against the Japanese fleet, attacking end on. The latter ships were able to concentrate their whole fire on the leading Russian ships and in return received only a limited fire.

Had the Russians adopted the strategy of imposing the brunt of the action upon their battleships while the rest of the fleet broke through and steered direct for Vladivostok, the commander believes they would have achieved a partial success. Instead of doing that, they followed the plan of mutually aiding one another, and thus, when the head of the battleship column got into trouble, the others steamed up and thrust their heads in the lion's mouth without being able to accept anything compensatory.

Discussing the question of sinking battleships and armored cruisers by gun fire, the commander expresses the opinion that the fact that the Russian ships were exceptionally low in the water contributed materially to the result. The Russians carried large quantities of coal, stores and ammunition, and thus weighted down and in a rough sea suffered badly from hits near the water line that ordinarily would not have been fatal.

Armor Withstood Test.

The commander says that the battle did not, as some claim, prove the superiority of arms to armor. He points out that the newest armor on the Russian ships, and notably in the case of the Orel, was not pierced. The proper distribution of armor is another question, and he says the Russian builders do not appear to have adopted the least knowledge and principles on the subject.

Akiyama declares the high seas aided the Japanese gunnery and accentuated the lack of training in the Russians; that the abatement of the wind and sea at night, permitting favorable torpedo attacks, and the luck of the pursuit movements of the Japanese, undertaken the second day of the battle, were notable elements in making the victory complete.

Akiyama defends Nebogatoff's surrender from severe criticism. Nebogatoff was surrounded by 27 ships, including the most powerful of Togo's fleet. Had the Russian refused to surrender his ships would have been sunk forthwith. Five or 10 minutes would have sufficed to finish the unpleasant task. Any other course than surrender would have condemned to needless death 2,000 officers and men.

Accurate estimates of the actual Russian casualties are impossible to obtain, but they are far under first estimates. The rescued and surrendered exceed 7,000, and making due allowance for those who escaped in the Almaz, Izumrud, Orel, Aurora, Jemtchug and the auxiliaries, the number actually lost is somewhere between 2,000 and 3,500.

PRISONER IS DELIGHTED.

His Arrest Prevented Loss of $212 by Theft—Found Under Bridge.

"Maybe I'm not delighted, judge," said Michael Tinda, a prisoner at the Oakland police station yesterday. He was found drunk under the Twenty-second street bridge at Brady street. "Just think of it, judge," said he. "I had $212.85 in the outside pocket of my coat when I was found by your officers."

Inspector Bailey and Capt. Emmett say they saw six of the "Red Onion" gang moving towards the intoxicated man. Tinda was pleased at his escape and gladly paid his $1 and costs.

Accuses Brother of Beating Her.

Simon Abdansen, a Syrian, of 1210 Basin alley, was arrested yesterday by Special Officer P. F. Kelly on a warrant charging him with aggravated assault and battery, preferred by his sister. The woman alleges her brother beat her over the head with a club on Friday, and that she had been confined to her bed as a result of it.

INTERESTING TALK ON CHILD GROWTH

Dr. Bainbridge's Address at Chautauqua Commends Itself to Thinking People.

A TEXT FOR MOTHERS' CLUBS

The lecture of the Rev. William Seaman Bainbridge, on "Helps and Hindrances in the Development of the Child," delivered recently at Chautauqua, aroused so much interest among the Pittsburgh women present that The Gazette this morning prints it in full. It is quite likely that at the mothers' meetings next winter Dr. Bainbridge's lecture will be widely discussed. The lecture was as follows:

All but the confirmed pessimist will admit that all through the years, since the dawn of human history, the march of men has been one of progress. At times, very slow, in some periods a zigzag course, again, apparently retrogressing; yet subsequent generations have seen in perspective that the pathway led always onward. We remember times because of the character stamped upon them by important events. Some centuries seem to be especially laden with a harvest of progress. Others are apparently more the seedtime.

With just pride, thinking men and women feel confident that we are living in the greatest age of advancement the world has ever known. In truth, there is much to justify such a belief. The telephone, wireless telegraphy, the X-ray, serum therapy, radium, submarine warfare, arbitration between warlike nations, land and sea transportation, and hundreds of various illustrations might be cited. But when the final history of our times is written, and the complete and just estimate of relative values taken, I believe that one of the most beneficent, and most worthy of the characteristics of our day will be the great moral uplift, really a moral renaissance, which has shown itself in almost every part of the civilized world. It is being felt as a tremendous force making striking changes, working in many ways all through the busy life of this twentieth century, in dress, in philanthropy, in business methods, in the estimation of our fellows, all through the social fabric there is an awakening for the highest and best. The whole movement preaches the doctrine of individual effort to the maximum development of the individual. No longer the race, but the individual. The individual is recognized as the essential element; advance of the whole comes only through advance of the individual, the unit.

In a multitude of ways expression of this new awakening is seen—the study of the child to see what can be done to perfect the race; to adult; the increased value put on human life; the effort to help the backward; to make up to the defective what is absent; the training of the feeble-minded, basing such efforts on a just appreciation of the condition of these efforts, and making something even of the idiot. Some of us know what that means. I will never forget an experience at Randalls Island with dozens children, who were brought before us to be judged as to whether or not they were feeble-minded. One of the little boys in the group was blind and partially deaf, but turning to the chairman of the committee he said most beseechingly, "Please don't let them call me an idiot." In the study of backward children we are learning what we should long since have learned in regard to the relative development of the child's mentality.

The Theoretical and Practical.

Interesting and profitable as is this line of thought, we must hasten on. There are to be only two lectures on my chosen subject, which is too vast for comprehensive study in so short a time. We will hope, however, to make these two hours a real e-fluco—a leading out. We will study first the side of our subject which is largely theoretical, though it may be very fundamental, and then consider the practical side of nutrition and environment, both which are of vital value, as we endeavor to meet our personal responsibility to the developing child. This is not a question of the parent alone. Unless we live in the Sahara desert absolutely alone, we must each and every one of us form part of the environment of one or more children. "No man liveth unto himself."

The doctrine that all men are created free and equal is a pleasant fallacy, is but a half-truth. We want to believe it; we shrink from anything else. We like to believe that all started the race on an equal footing. We like to offer as an excuse for many seeming defects or apparent shortcomings the belief that the line of defecting obstacles largely determines the direction and extent of the advance along life's pathway, that the elevation and progress of the individual cannot be measured by an absolute standard, and depends in no way upon heredity. On the other hand, there are those who refer with a certain element of pride to hereditary taint as an excuse for their failures. Some conclude that the doctrine that all men are created free and equal applies everywhere, and always, or else nowhere and never; they fail to accept it in its limitations. But nevertheless many an infant enters the world a slave, truly a prisoner a penalty—poverty of brain and poverty of body, prisoners of vice—many there are among the little ones.

There is something very real in heredity. There is more, however, in nutrition and environment. With the last two there are hope and courage, and in very many cases these prove a true antidote to the ill effects of heredity. Say to the child: "You can make out of your life what you will. You are free to carve out and mold your character and destiny." But to the teacher and parent urge the fact that heredity must not be forgotten as a definite factor in development; that it must be weighed carefully and reckoned with as an active, or at least, a latent equipoise force, helpful or detrimental, and that the relative value enters very relevantly into our problem and the child's future.

Heredity for Good or Evil.

Let us consider at this time a few suggestive facts concerning heredity in both its aspects, that is, as to the tendencies both good and evil. There is a great deal here for speculation and for theory, but there are some indubitable facts which an intelligent audience, as I find before me, will do well to consider. It may be that some of you here can help solve, for the benefit of all, some of the problems which face us in even a cursory view of heredity.

We are told by Ribot, the French scientist, that "heredity is that biological law by which all beings endowed with life tend to repeat themselves in their descendants; it is for the species what personal identity is for the individual. By it the groundwork remains unchanged amid incessant variation; by it nature ever copies and imitates herself. Ideally considered, heredity may be the power of production of life by life, but this conception is purely theoretical, for the phenomena of life do not lend themselves to such mathematical precision; the conditions of their occurrence grow more and more complex in proportion as we ascend from the vegetable world to the higher existence to man."

The inheritance of physical characteristics is clearly recognized. It is not uncommon to find the child the image of its father or its mother. Features such as color or texture of the hair and skin, the shape of the nails or certain peculiar defects, are often very like those of the parents. It is very strange that the child for the first few years of life may often be the exact counterpart of one parent, perhaps the mother, and may gradually change until after a few years it becomes the image of the father, or vice versa. In old Roman days many names were given because of such special traits handed down in the family peculiarities, such as the Nasones—large noses—and to the Capitones—large heads. (I have no doubt the Romans here were referring to a prenatal and not postnatal characters—a permanent enlargement and not a mere swelling.) Prominent historical examples of these changes could be given, if time would permit.

We instinctively expect to see large, strapping children born of parents who are of large stature. Obesity also often seems hereditary, although according to the flaming advertisements in the newspapers there is a sure and speedy cure. This tendency to put on flesh appears as a real organic predisposition, developing amid surroundings far from advantageous, even poverty and hard work not seeming to hold it in check.

Large or small bones—the framework of the body—are proved to be more or less affected by hereditary influences. Lucas tells us that even the excess or defect in the number of the vertabrae or teeth has been handed down.

The Nervous System.

The nervous system, both in its amount and its relative proportion and quality is claimed to be more or less regulated by transmitted influences. In other words, the general dimensions of the brain, and its convolutions. This if true, has an important and definite relation to the function of the nervous system. Time does not allow more than a brief mention of these alleged facts, most interesting to the psychologist. Whatever affects the part of our system the function of which is to bring every organ and tissue of the body into harmonious relation with every other, and adjust the body as a whole to its environment, must of necessity be both complex and of vital interest.

We know from our study of race horses and other forms of animal life that we can secure certain hereditary characteristics such as force, suppleness. Yet we must not argue too closely from the lower animals to the genus homo. Cribbing is said to be transmitted in the horse, but so far it has not been proved to be so in the human subject.

Length of life, longevity, is influenced by the initial vitality which each individual brings into the world. This is quite apart from hygiene, locality and civilization. The preservation of this initial vitality in the child of ill is significant. The building up of the resisting power and vitality that is lacking, is one of the most essential and important lessons for each one to consider. Life insurance companies, especially in England, as a definite business proposition, take into account the longevity of applicants. The question of alcohol is considered in the same light; an applicant whose ancestors imbibed freely, or who have been short lived, must pay a higher premium than one whose ancestors have lived longer or abstained from alcoholic drinks.

We hear of the F. F. V.s, of those who socially have better blood or more blood than other families. While it is a figure of speech to speak of blue blood, the physiological fact is undoubtable that some families have more blood than others, and that the quality differs. This may be an advantage or a disadvantage; it depends on the degree of variance from the normal type—either socially or physically. A larger amount of blood than normal may mean a disposition to apoplexy, hemorrhage and greater tendency toward acute inflammation. This tendency is passed down from generation to generation in some families.

Consanguinity and "Bleeders."

Haemophilia—bleeders. Cessation of hemorrhage largely depends on the clotting of the blood. Among people generally there are varying degrees in the tendency to bleeding, and in addition there is a particular disease—haemophilia—due to the absence of certain salts in the blood. The chief factor in the production of this disease seems to be heredity, although other causes, such as consanguinity, are known. In the history of nearly every case of this disease, it is possible to trace connection with a family of bleeders. The disease is handed down in a curious fashion. Though occurring much more commonly in the males than in the females, it is almost always transmitted through the female, so it is not passed on by the bleeders but by the non-bleeders. All males in a bleeding family are not afflicted by it, and the majority of those who have it die before they reach adult life, so that it is a comparatively rare disease.

Melancholia is often hereditary, especially in certain anaemic families—indicating a lack of sufficient red cells in the blood.

The question of immunity logically follows a discussion of the blood, for we now believe that the blood is one of the chief factors in immunity. Some families cannot take certain diseases, e. g., smallpox; they are born with certain tendencies unfavorable to the development of the disease. The blood is the internal antiseptic; the phagocyte blood cells, if they are strong enough, will fight off these disease germs. The antiseptic power of the blood, the resisting power of the system, bears a definite relation to initial vitality.

The transmission of disease itself by inheritance is a question for much thought. It is now believed that a predisposition to disease is transmissible, but not the disease germ, as in the case of tuberculosis. In the Journal of Infectious Diseases, March, 1905, there appeared an article reporting a few cases, all that could be found in exhaustive search of the literature, of the definite finding of tuberculous germs in the newly infected. As a rule, the child does not inherit the diseased organism, but only a diminished resisting power. Such a constitution, however, furnishes a good soil for the propaganda of disease germs.

In that most terrible of blood diseases, syphilis, which so often curses the offspring, deforming it in many ways, there is a transmission often to the second as well as to the first generation. Fortunately, it does not often go on down to the third generation. Treatment can cure the parent in the first or second stage, but that will not cure certain defects that have been passed on to the child.

Cancer is much discussed today. It is believed by some that it has a large factor in heredity, but in the opinion of many scientists it is not transmitted.

Rheumatism—[loss concerning rheumatism are changing today]. An attempt is being made to find a micro-organism responsible for this malady, not assigning to heredity so large a part in its production, although inherited tendencies toward rheumatism certainly need to be recognized and combated.

How Diseases Are Acquired.

Methods of acquiring a disease—The child may take a disease in one of three ways: (1) Through its blood supply; thus we find children who coincidently with the mother may have had smallpox, malaria, measles, scarlet fever and all the ordinary diseases; (2) in the strict sense of the term the child may inherit the disease; (3) the child may be born with a predisposition to the disease.

Insanity is found in families. Other nervous affections which show a low state of the nervous system or an unstable equilibrium are found more frequently in certain types of people than in others.

Thus far we have spoken of the anatomical and physiological side. There is much to show in the psychological field. Concerning instinct, which is innate, and intelligence, which is developed by slowly acquired experience, there is yet much to be learned.

The question of acquired modification and transmission of any acquired disposition—habit—time will not permit discussion of here.

The British Journal of Children's Diseases makes the following startling statement, that: 21 per cent of the idiots have histories of mental defects in the family; 20 per cent have histories of epilepsy in the family, 16 per cent have histories of alcoholism in the family; that 3 per cent of lawyers' children are mentally defective, 4 per cent of doctors' children are mentally defective, 18 per cent of clergyman's children are mentally defective, and 40 per cent of mental defects in children are caused by alcohol.

Of course, we remember the declaration of Daniel Webster, that there are lies, unspeakable lies, and statistics. These statistics are open to the same objections as all statistics; and can only be taken as a general basis for deduction. It is not our purpose to explain them, but they certainly are food for thought. Does the minister, for example, do all he can to safeguard his children? Is his community too exacting? Are his duties too taxing? Is his wife too harassed because the small salary is not paid?

Peculiarities of the Babe.

Let us look at the little helpless infant. Is the infant an adult in miniature? Certainly not! The figure: "The child is father to the man" may apply later on to the offspring, but the child is only a stage in the development of the adult. Multiply the infant many times in size and peculiarities, and you will have a most grotesque specimen.

The babe is the subject of all mammalian offspring. It needs the greatest of the most intelligent care. A mother may be learned in all the languages, and yet be ignorant in the right care of the little life. How differently the mother of experience and education views the child. Said a woman to me: "I was ignorant about all that pertains to the care of my child. It was merely a wonderful plaything to me." Another mother of several children said the other day: "I was most careless. I was wholly ignorant at first. After I lost my third child I began to learn, and I discovered there was something more than affection needed to keep a family well and strong. The death of my third child was a needless death. The first two had really a miraculous escape."

The little stranger—"the creature of unstable equilibrium"—is a mass of potentialities. There are certain functions that are absolutely necessary. He has to eat and breathe and grow. He has very much to do. Do we carelessly add to that work? We take up the little child, and trot it and shake our heads at it, or begin to wave our hands, so as to get the light and the brightness in the little ones' eyes, in all sorts of ways we try to gain the attention of the child, who instead ought to be sleeping, and not furnishing amusement for the silly and thoughtless elders.

The macula lutea, or the center of vision in the eye, where in the adult the rods and cones are most numerous, are not developed in the newborn. The eye is not prepared for vision for some time after advent. The eyes of a kitten do not open for some days after birth. In the normal offspring the eyes are open, but the child sees not. The eyes are attracted by light, or by objects so that some dim impression may thus be conveyed to the brain centers, the brain which should be absolutely quiescent.

Let the Baby Alone.

How absurd the conduct toward the little child within the first few weeks of its life! Trying to make it smile and notice things—demanding an unnecessary expenditure of nerve force. The child should be sleeping and let alone. There should be less tax on heart and lungs and other organs and functions. Anything in the way of a demand on the mental powers is unnecessary. Tax on the highest nerve centers is wholly wrong. The little one should sleep and eat and rest.

For weeks after birth the lachrymal glands which supply the tears are not developed. There is no fluid to lubricate the eye. The infant cries. Neighbors call in to give the mother advice. "That little one has to cry. That will develop its lungs. If there are no tears in its eyes then there is no pain." How absurd! And the poor infant—

"An infant crying in the night,
An infant crying for the light,
And with no language but a cry!"

There may be a pin sticking into it; perhaps a hand uncomfortably tight. It may be crying because of hunger or of fear, or from abnormality or disease. Every child should have its physical examination soon after its birth to discover any possible abnormal condition. Bad habits may cause its crying, for even a child only a few days old may have very bad habits. True, the crying may be developing the lungs—a good physical exercise—and the child that does not cry—we call it good—will soon be fit for heaven if it does not cry at all; yet, because there are no tears upon the cheeks it does not follow that there is not some cause which should be looked into by its mother.

Our time is all but up. A word in closing. Today we have briefly considered some of the facts about heredity, some of the early stages in the development of the child, and have taken a brief view of this weakest of all animal offspring, the human infant.

However much relatively heredity may be a factor in the life of any individual child, the final outcome depends far more, as a rule, upon the child's nutrition and environment. The parents and guardians, with their authority, may, during the formative period, control the most potent influences which affect the child. As Oppenheim says: "Parents control the bodies and minds, the hearts and souls of their children, not so much by what their ancestors were as by what they themselves do and think."

FAMOUS DIVINES IN LOCAL PULPITS

Drs. Patton and Robertson Preach in Adjoining Churches, but Do Not Meet.

THEY TARRY HERE BRIEFLY

Two eminent theologians preached yesterday in the East End, and, although the spires of the respective churches in which they occupied pulpits for absent pastors were in sight, the visiting divines did not meet. From Grove City came the Rev. Dr. Francis L. Patton, president of Princeton Theological seminary, to preach in the Third Presbyterian church, and the Rev. Dr. John Robertson, the celebrated Scotch evangelist, held services at the East Liberty Presbyterian church. Both came to the city at a late hour Saturday night, and both will leave on sunrise trains this morning.

Dr. Patton has been giving a course of lectures at Grove City and came here to preach for the Rev. Dr. W. L. McEwan, pastor of the Third church, who is spending his vacation at his old home in Kentucky. Dr. Patton registered at the Hotel Schenley and during the day met a number of prominent Presbyterian clergymen. He addressed large congregations at both the morning and evening services.

In his morning sermon Dr. Patton did not undertake to unravel any knotty theological problems, and it afforded the preacher the opportunity to deliver one of the most popular addresses which he has given in Pittsburgh. He compared Christianity to the school in which every person who professes Christ is a student. The good or the bad student, he likened to those who keep or break the discipline of Christian religion. This morning Dr. Patton will return to Grove City.

Dr. Robertson was the guest of the Rev. and Mrs. C. H. Pridgeon at their Congress street residence. Dr. Robertson is well known in Pittsburgh for his work here during the Allegheny county union revival services, held during the spring of 1904. For some time past he has been one of the instructors at the Moody Bible institute in Chicago, and is now delivering a series of lectures before the Bible conference at Winona Lake, Ind. He will return to the conference today, but will preach again at the East Liberty Presbyterian church next Sunday. At the close of the conference he will engage in evangelistic work in the United States. Dr. Robertson's sermon yesterday morning was on "The Character of Abraham, the Hebrew," and last night he preached on "The Heart."

CHAUTAUQUA

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 6.—The strictly closed Sunday seemed but a myth this morning when shortly after 7 o'clock several hundred people alighted from the traction cars and passed through the road gate, each one minus the pass from the general director of the institution, which is the open sesame of Chautauqua on the day of rest. These weary mortals were the excursionists who left Saturday morning to spend the day at Niagara falls. A freight wreck at Collins, shortly after 7 o'clock and just 20 minutes before the excursion train arrived at that point, caused a delay of 12 hours, and compelled hundreds to spend the night as best they could.

Bible week was opened by Dr. Jesse L. Huribut, who conducted the Bible study and in the afternoon made the address at the assembly convocation. He also gave a talk on Palestine, in the model of Palestine, which is the work of Dr. Wythe.

Dr. Wilbur Chapman, the eminent evangelist, preached the morning sermon and will conduct the devotional hours during the coming week, in addition to presiding at the daily ministerial conferences. He is assisted in all his work by Mr. Fred Butler, a noted singer. Dr. Chapman preached to an audience of 8,000. He deplored the decadence into which the American home has fallen, and made an urgent plea for the consecration of the home, which he termed the training field of eternity.

Bishop Vincent strongly urged all parents to send their children to their respective Sunday schools, with the result that there was a marked increase in the attendance. The Rev. E. W. Morton had charge of the intermediate schools, Miss Frances B. Wells of the primary, and Miss Phoebe H. Elliott of the kindergarten.

At the Disciple house, Howard T. Cree of Augusta, Ga., and Peter Ainslee of Beeltown, conducted communion services. The Rev. John G. Park of Greenwood, Miss., conducted the services at the Methodist headquarters, the Rev. William Channing Brown at the Unitarian and the Rev. Mr. Baker at the Lutheran.

Dr. Forbush addressed the Young Peoples Christian Ethics meeting, which is limited to young people under 21 years.

Miss Helen Barnes of Chicago, secretary of the American committee of the Young Women's Christian association, spoke at the open air meeting for women, on the personality of a Christian. The sacred song service was held in the evening, after which President Charles Cuthbert Hall told of experiences in India.

SAYS CONDITIONS ARE IMPROVING

Chaplain Hunter, Home from Philippines, Tells of Effect of American Influence.

SCHOOL TEACHERS' BIG HELP

The Rev. Joseph L. Hunter, chaplain of the Fourth United States infantry, recently returned from the Philippines, occupied the pulpit of the Rev. Dr. David McAllister, of the Eighth Street Reformed Presbyterian church, yesterday morning. Chaplain Hunter spoke interestingly on the conditions in the far eastern islands, saying in part:

The commission given by Christ to His disciples in Matt. xxviii:19-20, to "Go and teach all nations" covers the Philippine islands, although they belong to the region so graphically and accurately described by Kipling as "somewhere east of Suez, where there ain't no ten commandments and where the best is like the worst."

With American occupation moral and religious conditions are improving, yet during the transition period the improvement is not always evident. The influence of many Americans, some of them adventurers, others following a profession of life that is discreditable, is not helpful to better conditions. But all are learning that American institutions and laws must be respected.

It is too soon to expect much improvement in the natives but the seed is being planted and the example of Christian Americans is helpful. But this is often counteracted by bad Americans. Americans relax in the Philippines, and this moral and physical degeneracy is called "Philippinitis." The monotony of existence and the isolation of army posts almost make men believe that their conditions excuse any moral delinquency.

The low standard of morals among the Filipinos is a great cause of vice among foreigners. The Filipino is an inveterate gambler, and cannot be parted from his pet game cock. He takes it along to church and spends the rest of the day at the cock-pit. The women usually gamble at cards, yet are very devout observers of outward forms, and participate enthusiastically in processions. One third of their time is occupied with religion, and about one-tenth with their work; their churches cost more than schools, roads and government.

Protestant missionaries and American school teachers are doing much to improve conditions. The Young Men's Christian association is doing much for the welfare of American soldiers and sailors. Army chaplains are also a great aid in restraining men from vices that are all too common, and in adding to their contentment. There should be a chaplain at every post in the Philippines, and also a Young Men's Christian association secretary. There will be more marked improvement in the moral conditions in the islands in the near future.

SUGGEST THAT GAME LAWS BE PRINTED IN MANY TONGUES

At the monthly meeting of the Burroughs club, Saturday evening, at the home of Miss Margaret Miller, Wilkinsburg, committees were appointed and arrangements made for the weekly outing, which will be held next Saturday at Beulah park, near Verona. Plans for the organization of branch clubs throughout the state were made, and invitations were extended to parties in sympathy with the club's objects to communicate with Miss Mary H. Gibson, Wilkinsburg. A resolution was passed suggesting that the state game commission publish bird and game laws in Italian, Hungarian, Bohemian, Polish and Belgian languages and suggesting the distribution of these circulars in centers of foreign population.

EAST END CHURCH GETS NEW PASTOR

The Rev. J. G. Slayter Preaches Initial Sermon on Christian Heroism.

NO FORMALITIES ARE HELD

The Rev. John G. Slayter yesterday morning preached his first sermon in accepting the pastorate of the East End Christian church, South Highland avenue and Alder street. The new minister was introduced to the Sunday school by J. P. Hamilton. There were no formalities in his presentation to the congregation. Mr. Slayter succeeds the Rev. Dr. W. J. Young, who has accepted a call to a church in Indiana.

Mr. Slayter is a Kentuckian and was educated in Nashville, Tenn. Before coming here he conducted successful pastorates of churches at Steubenville and at Akron. Today, with his family, he will take possession of the $7,000 parsonage of the East End church. Mr. Slayter's first sermon was on "Christian Heroism." He said:

Institutions and nations usually present the characteristics of their founders. The English speaking people of today are characterized by the liberty-loving spirit of the Angels and Saxons. Presbyterianism presents always and everywhere the traits that distinguished John Calvin. Successful Methodism is always marked by the zeal and piety of John Wesley, while the Disciples of Christ have gained many of their victories by their love of discussion obtained from Alexander Campbell.

But these examples are sufficient to establish the law that the church of Christ should be characterized by the traits of character that Jesus, the divine founder, possessed. It is thus that Christ lives in the world today. His love, sympathy, His purposes and plans live in the world, through His church. The church that bears to the world these traits, plans and purposes is a church of Christ. The church that does not is something else than a church of Christ.

Among the traits of the Christ none are more prominent than His heroism. From first to last the shadow of the cross darkened His life, and yet with the knowledge of the suffering of the cross constantly in mind He never turned from His purpose to avoid it. His heroism has had much to do with His conquests.

Is the heroism of the Christ to be found in the world today? We think so. Many regard these as degenerate days and look upon the church of today as a degenerate church; but in fact this is the golden age of the world and the church of today is the best church the world has known. Only a few years ago a New York editor refused a $5,000,000 bribe and published the facts that put the corruptionists in prison. Modern missions in the church of today is manifesting as high a type of heroism as the world has ever seen. The young girl reared under the kindly influences of an American home and the young man cultured and well equipped for life leave all we hold most dear and pitch their tent upon the very frontiers of civilization; face constant danger and hardship for the cause they love. Wherever this spirit is found success in some form will follow. My hope for this church is that the characteristics of the Christ may be found in its life and that we may be able to successfully occupy our field.

Announces Engagement to Missionary.

BEAVER FALLS, PA., Aug. 6.—(Special.)—At a tea given last evening by Mrs. John A. Campbell in honor of her niece, Miss Myrtle Campbell, daughter of David Campbell of College Hill, the engagement of Miss Campbell to the Rev. Norman Ewer of Hanadam, Persia, was announced. Miss Campbell will sail from New York on August 26 for Persia, with a party of missionaries.

Doings at Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 6.—Mayor Edward F. Dunne, Chicago's advocate of municipal ownership, headed 2,000 Knights of Columbus who took to the surf in a body at noon today. The collective bath followed celebration of solemn high mass in the big St. Nicholas cathedral, led by some of the great Catholic churchmen of the country. Nearly 10,000 members of the order were in the city during the day to assist in the celebration of embarkation day of the patron of the order.

Among prominent Pittsburgh knights here were: J. I. Cronin, W. H. Markey, J. R. M. Murphy, J. L. Futzhler, E. G. McNulty, F. W. King, Thomas P. Walsh, T. J. Maloney, N. Milligan, John Kane, John J. McMahon, Joseph Welden.

All records for shore travel have been broken since yesterday morning, and the crowd on beach and boardwalk today was the greatest ever known in Atlantic City. Solid columns of promenaders filled the big 60-foot walk, and bath houses were compelled to close to newcomers this afternoon, after their rooms had been filled to overflowing and reserve supply of suits was exhausted. A smart shower in the middle of the day sent the crowds running for cover, but the sun came out in less than an hour, and the jolly thousands returned to the beach front.

A valuable pony belonging to the family of Senator Vare of Philadelphia made a sensation on the beach by taking to the surf among the thousands of bathers at one of the points of greatest congestion. The diminutive animal had been unharnessed by the family groom, and when the man entered the water the pony followed, to the great delight of the children, who took turns in mounting the little beast's back for rides through the breakers.

Jack Burke, former Philadelphia sporting man and now Western Pennsylvania manager for a big Chicago packing house firm, won a $100 bet from Louis Hoffman, a Chicagoan, by traversing the beach in a pea-green bathing suit, carrying a sunshade of the same lurid tint. The bet was the result of a banter by a pretty girl, owner of the parasol, and a crowd that blocked the beach followed the principals and the stakeholders on the journey.

"That was an easy hundred, but I wouldn't make the journey under any similar circumstances again for ten thousand," said Burke, as he fingered the checks.

One of the attractions of the beach front today was a bevy of 11 maidens from Pittsburgh, who turned out on the boardwalk in pretty costumes, with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Shaffer and Mrs. Eugene Healy of Pittsburgh, who are chaperoning the party at the Albemarle. In the party were Miss Eva Martin, Miss Stella G. Myers, Miss Gertrude Swalm, Miss Florence Swalm, Miss Edna Swalm, Miss Elsie Culp, Miss Elizabeth Culp, Miss Mary Ebersol, Miss Nora Buck, Miss Katherine Kuehner, Miss Florence Kuppenhauer.

Fred C. White, president of the Hawley Glass Company of Hawley, Pa., was on the boardwalk today with his daughter, Miss White. They are at the Dennis, where Mrs. Phillips of Hawley is visiting Miss White.

F. N. Stuckey of Pittsburgh is at the head of a party of young people who are at the Albemarle. In the party are Miss Anna Stuckey, Miss Pauline Stuckey, Miss Marie Stuckey, Miss Catherine Holler, Silbert E. Kreiling, Miss Clara Succop and Miss Eleanor Chambers. F. R. Cyphers and Miss May E. Cyphers arrived last night for an extended stay, and Joseph Kauffman is here from Pittsburgh with his family and Mrs. Allan Kauffman.

The Hon. C. W. Patterson, mayor of Connellsville, is visiting the Berkeley with a party that includes Mr. and Mrs. James McGrath, Mrs. Amelia Madden and daughter, Miss McHugh, Mrs. Q. Marietta and son and Mrs. E. Parkill and daughter.

Mrs. Edward A. Smith of Pittsburgh and her son, James Lawrence Smith, are here for a lengthy visit.

Lawrence Dilworth of Pittsburgh and his brother, Joseph R. Dilworth, are at the Marlborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Gowen Walters and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Murdock of Johnstown, Pa., who made the trip in their automobile, have just been joined at the Sterlin by the Misses Lillian and Alice Murdock and J. M. Murdock, Jr.

GUARDSMEN HAVE FINE QUARTERS

Two Companies of the Fourteenth Regiment, N. G. P., Live in Home-Like Fashion.

PIANO AND PICTURES HELP

When a soldier gets a billiard table and a piano in his barracks, with Turkish rugs on the floor and pictures on the wall, he about makes up his mind that he has reached the ideal of good living. And if he happens to be a member of Company E or Company I of the Fourteenth regiment, N. G. P., he is certain to be not far from realizing every comfort which can be afforded in barrack life.

The little cubby holes which have been allotted a few of the companies of the Fourteenth over the market house are not well adapted for housing the efficient companies of that regiment. It would seem impossible to place 60 men therein and give them any accommodations, if it were not for the fact that a few company officers have the knack of paraphrasing the old Latin proverb, "multum in parvo," into an intelligent carpenter's plans. This is just what has been done in Commanbee E and I.

Capt. Charles C. McGovern of Company E, evolved a plan to make his men feel at home, and set to work to make an inviting clubroom out of the cubby hole which was allotted his company. Along the sides of the walls he constructed lockers. He carpeted the floor, papered the walls and hung pictures thereon. Some of the boys enjoy billiards and he procured a billiard table. Some of the boys are musicians and he added a fine upright piano.

The pictures are scenes from the various camps in which the Fourteenth has taken part, and each one recalls happy days when the snake hunters of the Fourteenth made good—they always do, in this room the boys have the time of their lives on drill nights. After drill some play billiards while others play music. Then there is a quartet that sings. If all the companies in the guard had a similar home-like equipment, Gov. Pennypacker would have less reason to whistle at inspection.

Capt. Howard B. Ourster, the new assistant superintendent of the state constabulary, who is likely soon to leave the guard, has his company faced with very comfortable quarters in the market house. Capt. Ourster likewise has carpets on the floor and pictures on the walls. Lockers are provided for everybody, and it is a fine group of young men that he has recruited in his company. The accompanying pictures tell the story better than words. The boys are proud of their quarters and the officers are proud of the boys.

STORM AT PHILADELPHIA.

Two Inches of Rain Fall, Houses Undermined and One Man Probably Fatally Injured.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6.—An unusually heavy thunderstorm passed over this section early today, doing considerable damage. More than two inches of rain fell within a period of an hour and a half. Sewers in some parts of the city were unable to carry off the water and streets and cellars were flooded.

In the northeastern part of the city two houses were undermined and collapsed, probably fatally injuring John Hanbocker, aged 78. His wife was also hurt. Four other persons who were in the houses when they fell, had narrow escapes from death. The storm did considerable damage in southern New Jersey.

Is Laden With Cheap Jewelry.

When arrested yesterday morning by Detective George Cole, Samuel Pertl, who says he lives in Cleveland, was a veritable walking jewelry store. He had in his possession six men's watches, four ladies' watches and chains, 15 cheap rings and one very fine diamond ring. He was trying to sell the articles and the detective locked him up, charging him with being a suspicious person.

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly, and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications removed the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

few Wells Are Completed and They Are Not Important

Important developments were lacking in the lower southwest fields during the past week. Fewer wells were completed than for any previous week for many months. The simple fact that all came in light producers and are inside of defined limits caused them to attract but little attention. The old districts that showed considerable activity at the first of the year have been drilled over and none remain that do not show a decline in operations.

There is not a single operating company in the lower southwest that will not enter the winter with a less production than it had at the first of the year. This does not apply to the smaller companies alone, but the larger as well. Some of the latter have given up hope of keeping up their production to a given point and have almost suspended development work. The most of them are holders of light producing territory that could be operated successfully on a higher market than now prevails and they will take up the work where they stopped when the advance comes. Just when the desirable change will come is a matter of conjecture. It is thought that a new source of supply of high grade crude will have to be discovered if the demand for the product is to be met.

The low grades of the west and southwest will not meet the requirements in every particular. While they will furnish a small percentage of the lighter products, it must be remembered the demand for the same is increasing and it is not likely that the vast production of the west can supply all that will be needed. The matter of supplying illuminant and fuel oil are not of so much concern at this time. A considerable percentage of the former can be procured from the inferior grades of crude. While somewhat inferior in quality it can be used as a substitute and at a reduced cost to the consumer, while the prevailing conditions in the eastern fields remain.

The fact that there is very little producing property changing hands is accepted that operators are anticipating a rise rather than a decline in the market. Another reason for operators holding on to their producing properties is the very slim chances available to secure new. No one who keeps close track of developments sees any signs of new fields and wildcatting has reached that stage where it is decidedly hazardous business. The records for months past have shown that nothing better than small pools have been discovered, with an occasional extension to some of the old developments. Few of these have proved profitable in the end. Perhaps but one exception can be recalled—the Berea grit development on Yellow creek, in Calhoun county, West Virginia. The producing area has expanded and the wells have been of an average size to make it a profitable field.

At the present time operations are declining on Yellow creek. All through the year the drill has been active in that district and the extensions found have been such as to keep up interest and operations. The interior has been drilled over and little room left for additional wells. To the northeast in the new extension is now the most activity, but the late completions are reduced in size. There is a little effort making to discover new pools. All told there is not more than a half dozen experimental wells drilling in the county. Wildcatting in all parts of the state where there is a prospect for finding new production has fallen off and the indications are that it will be less before the close of the year.

In the extreme lower southwest, there is a little wildcatting in Wayne, Putnam, Cabell and Kanawha counties. This work is backed by local talent, in the respective localities of these tests, and are not considered of sufficient importance to enlist the attention of operators generally engaged in development work. The discovery of the Big Lime pool near Milton, in Cabell county, has been responsible for the loss of a large amount of money to the natives. Since the discovery and development of the Cabell county pool there has been test wells drilled in adjacent counties and the Milton pool surrounded by dry holes. In none of the tests drilled in adjacent counties has oil been found in paying quantities.

The efforts that have been under way for so many months, along the eastern edge of Tyler county, were rewarded during the week by the completion of several test wells that are small producers, ranging from 10 to 20 barrels a day. The oil in two was found in the Big Injun and the best got it in the Dunkard or Cow Run sand. There is some new work starting in that district and the new wells will be the incentive for starting more.

Nothing out of the ordinary occurred in the southeastern Ohio fields. The old districts finished about the usual number of small producers and in the new development, on Wells creek, in Jefferson county, a new producer was added to the list. The prospects for a pool of some dimensions are improving and those holding leases are not hesitating about starting new work. In experimental work Jefferson county leads, but dry holes have been encountered in many of the localities that have been tested within the past six months. West of Empire is the best development of the year in Jefferson county, but it has been fully defined and at this time there is very little work under way or starting.

In the vicinity of Homeworth, Columbiana county, there has been a revival in development work. Tests are drilling or starting to the north, northeast and east of developments. It is shallow sand territory and can be operated at little expense. The wells are about 800 feet deep so that a small producer can scarcely be called a failure.

West of the Bakertown tunnel, in Allegheny county, there is some new work starting in the vicinity of the good producer, recently completed on Crystal farm. Before the close of the month, if all the work contemplated is started, there will be more than a dozen wells drilling. In the Burgettstown field, in Washington county, Kelly Bros. & Couter were pleasantly surprised when they drilled in their No. 2 on the Vance farm and got a 50-barrel producer.

MARKET IS OPTIMISTIC, BUT IT IS ALSO CONSERVATIVE

Absence of Untoward Developments in Grain and Other Crops Has Exerted a Beneficial Effect on the Street.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—There were very few new conditions confronting the stock market during the week. In the main, the absence of untoward developments in the grain and other crops, with the sole exception of cotton, has exerted a beneficial effect. The keynote of the situation is one of confidence mingled with conservative optimism. That, at least, may be said to be the consensus of opinion of the banking element of Wall street at the moment. On the stock exchange this sentiment is being reflected by the steadiness of the securities, the disclosure of the fact that it is easier to advance prices than to depress them and the paucity of offerings. Very little actual business was done in stocks on the exchange during the week. The professional element found free rein in their operations and aside from the fact that the transactions disclosed a firm tone to the security market, the government of prices calls for little extended comment.

Looking into the future, the financial skies are clear. There is a large volume of business being done in practically all lines of manufacturing, and there is no disposition to create a boom. Contentment with the situation financially and commercially exists and the prospects of steady business with profitable results are generally believed sound. It is this prevailing sentiment which finds fair reflection in the stock market. There is no disposition to sell. Holders of stocks are content to await future developments, and, seeing chances of improvement in the earning powers of their properties, are unwilling to take advantage of the prevailing level of prices.

That this level is a high one everyone admits. Estimating stock values either from an income basis or from a speculative prospective value, the conclusion must inevitably be reached that the stock market has fairly well discounted the the substantial trade conditions, the improved earnings, and the confident and optimistic hopes for the future. There are a few exceptions here and there throughout the stock list, but it has become a difficult matter for the conservative broker to make selections for his customers who wish to make investments.

Those who enter the stock market on an investment basis at the present moment, are paying the highest prices on record for the standard railroad stocks and many of the leading manufacturing shares. It is a recognition of this fact which induces conservative commission houses to urge caution in stock market operations. What then is to be done? With an account of optimism general, with money rates continuing easy, crop prospects favorable and a generally good and sound commercial situation, it would seem easy to enter the market as a purchaser. There is, however, the general disinclination of a cautious public to pay the existing prices.

Those who argue that a higher range of values will be established as a result of the forces working at the present, have more ammunition, apparently, than have those who have espoused the other side of the stock market. Yet it is to be remembered that the range of prices at the moment is a high one from which to start a dull market. Those who have held their stocks, unwilling to sell at the existing range, will doubtless change their opinion on further advances. Such an operation, experience has shown, usually occurs when financial skies are bright and optimistic prophecies of the future are being made.

Naturally, all financial markets of the world will watch the progress of the peace negotiations to be begun on Thursday next with great interest. Our market will in all likelihood be subjected to sudden movements of a contrary nature reflecting from Portsmouth. The peace meeting held under the portals of the exchange, so to speak, will undoubtedly prove a factor of importance to the speculative element for a time at least. On the broad question of the outcome of the negotiations, however, this market has plainly indicated that the prospects of a successful termination of the war are favorable.

London, apparently, holds the same view despite the pessimistic utterances credited to the Russian envoys. On the other hand, Paris is skeptical and inclined to the belief that the demands of the Japanese will not be acceded to by the Russian plenipotentiaries. Aside from the general statement that it is generally rare some go so far that there is no precedent for an unsuccessful termination of negotiations when peace proposals have advanced to the stage to which the Russian and Japanese markets of the world would undoubtedly be improved by the termination of the destruction of wealth caused by the war.

Under the circumstances the financial markets of the world would stagger us from a blow if the negotiations were to end unsuccessfully, and it was finally decided to push the warfare further. Demands upon credit would fall equally in Europe and America as a result of the close and immediate relations of the financial markets. The question which confronts the peace envoys has evidently been solved beforehand by the speculative element here, and to a lesser extent in England. That there will be conflicting and varying reports during the progress of the peace negotiations is to be expected. In the end, if peace is made, it will probably be found that the revival in trade and the relief from the strain of financing the war has not been discounted.

If, however, the Russian envoys find that the demands of the Japanese for an indemnity, which, according to all accounts may be the rock upon which the negotiations may split, are too excessive, it is likely that there will be a material recession in values and a change in the money market conditions, which in turn may completely change the entire future of the money market.

A survey of the movement of prices of the leading railroad stocks during the week brings out clearly the fact that there is a waiting attitude on the part of investors for further information concerning the progress of the crops. "No news is good news" was a frequent comment as the days passed last week, and there was an absence of unfavorable damage news concerning wheat and corn. In cotton, the government published its monthly report, showing an abnormally low condition, 74.6, a condition which may explain the price of 11 cents for cotton, which is now being made.

There is a disposition, however, to discredit the government crop reports, in view of the unpleasant developments in the department of agriculture. The plea has gone forth from the cotton trade, and it is backed up by the textile industry, that a radical change will be made in the methods of collating the information concerning the crops. It is asked that no guessing or compilations be done by any set of government officials, but that the information concerning the crop be thrown open to trade, as it is received, and that the individuals who are inclined to speculate can then make their own guesses and estimates in percentage figures.

IS BANNER YEAR FOR THE FARMERS

Crops Will Be Bigger and Better Than Ever Before in Nation's History.

GIVE MILLIONS IN REVENUE

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—American farms will produce bigger and better crops and return more millions in revenue to the farming interests this year than ever before in the history of the country. All kinds of crops—wheat, corn, oats, hay, smaller grain and produce staples—have progressed to the stage where this prediction may be made with scarcely the slightest chance the final official figures will disprove its correctness.

Railroad officials and statisticians of agricultural departments in the various states of the grain-producing region give their personal and official guarantee that the year 1905 is to be the banner year in farm prosperity.

Possibly one wheat crop—that of 1901—will exceed that of 1905. In 1901 the crop aggregated 748,000,000 bushels. It looks now as if the corn crop would exceed by a large margin that of 1902, when 2,524,000 bushels were produced. It is when one takes the wheat, corn, oats and hay crop together and contemplates what the grand total of this year of grace is to be, that the story becomes an inspiring one.

Beginning with Indiana, moving over into Illinois, then to Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas, one finds the same bright ray of promise everywhere in the corn fields. Sturdy of stock, large of ear, and plump of grain, there seems no possible weather contingency that could prevent a mammoth harvest of this grain. According to figures emanating from state capitals Saturday afternoon, 370,000 bushels more of corn will be raised this year than last in the states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Ohio and Wisconsin.

These same 12 states are expected to produce 114,000,000 bushels more wheat than they did a year ago. Of the winter wheat states, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Ohio, Nebraska and Missouri make a fine showing in increases. Enough of the crop has been gathered and threshed in good order to make these figures semi-official.

With black rust made practically innocuous in the spring wheat country by favorable weather conditions, with the harvest already on in a large part of the area and with a larger acreage than last year from which to draw, the figures submitted for prospects in the northwest are not apparently overdrawn.

DYE CAUSES BLINDNESS.

Greensburg Boy Losing Sight Because Colored Confetta Got in His Eyes at Carnival.

GREENSBURG, PA., Aug. 6.—(Special.)—Clark Goodlin, 11 years old, is losing his sight under very peculiar circumstances. Last week a carnival company gave exhibitions in the vicinity and the lad was there upon several occasions. Bushels of confetti were scattered promiscuously among the crowds. Someone threw a handful into the face of young Goodlin. A few days afterward his left eye became inflamed and yesterday the physician announced that the sight was entirely gone and that there was a possibility that the sight of the right eye would be lost.

The confetti is composed of small bits of various colored paper and it is supposed that the dye used therein was poisonous.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK IN THE LOCAL MARKETS

Flour Drops Another 15 Cents, Sugar Remains Steady and Eggs Advance.

Aside from a sliding down in flour and a stiff advance in the price of fresh selected eggs, there was little of note in the market last week. Business was excellent, but prices did not shift much. Flour slid off another 15 cents, sugar remained steady and eggs advanced about a cent on best stock. With slight advances in the price of pork products, all provisions are now decidedly higher than they were a few weeks ago.

The sales of green goods during the week were immense and dealers generally were well pleased with the week's business. Prices declined considerably and are now at about the usual figures which prevail during the season when the local gardeners are getting into the market. The trade with out-of-town retailers has increased wonderfully during the week and the local merchants were kept busy shipping to the towns which draw their supplies from Pittsburgh.

HAY AND GRAIN.

Receipts.

Receipts Saturday were: Pennsylvania lines, 23¼ cars oats, 2 cars corn, 10 cars hay, 1 cars straw, ½ car rye; Baltimore & Ohio, 2 cars oats, 4 cars hay, 1 car straw, 2 cars feed; Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, 4 cars oats, 1 car hay, 1 car feed.

The week just closed has been active in all lines, with a tendency toward lower prices on some commodities and higher on others. Hay continues in good demand, owing to light receipts. The supply of shelled corn is about equal to demand, while car corn continues scarce. Wheat and oat straw is in good demand, while rye is very dull. Oats are in heavy receipt and the market has eased off considerably in price. No. 3 mixed, no. in fact, that present figures are really below the laydown cost.

Farris Not Guilty of Bribery.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO., Aug. 6.—State Senator Frank H. Farris was today acquitted by a jury in the district court on a charge of bribery in connection with a bill introduced at the session of the state legislature in 1901 to repeal the statute prohibiting the use of alum in the manufacture of baking powder, commonly known as the "alum bill."

PEACE CONFERENCE IS RESTRAINING FACTOR

Otherwise, Paris Bourse Has Been Swayed by Amenities Between Germany, England and France.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]
(Copyright, 1905, by New York Herald Co.)

PARIS, Aug. 6.—The bourse has been swayed during the past week by the more amicable tone of Germany towards England regarding the naval visit to the Baltic, and towards France regarding Morocco, but fears of the failure of the peace negotiations have exercised a restraining influence.

Rio Tintos have been strong on the favorable situation of the copper market. Dealers also made a notable advance, but the most notable movement of the week was the gain of over 20 francs in Waggonlits on sustained demand. French rentes made fractional gains each day.

Confidence in the successful issue of peace negotiations is all that is required to send them higher. Sugar shares were affected by a scare in the sugar market on the announcement that Jaudet was defeated, but the bourse otherwise was unaffected.

GO TO JAIL ON SUSPICION.

Men Who Resemble Store Breakers Committed for 15 Days.

In the South Side police hearings yesterday Michael Wajacki, a Pole, was fined $25 and costs for going to the boarding house of John Borkowitz, Carson and Main streets, pulling a revolver and threatening to shoot Borkowitz.

James Nagle of Cincinnati, and Thomas Conway of Newark, N. J., were sent to jail for 15 days because they are said to answer the description of the men who attempted to break into a South Side confectionery last week.

PRICES ARE CHECKED BY POLITICAL CLOUDS

London Stock Market Is Affected by Peace Conference and Baltic Developments.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]
(Copyright, 1905, by New York Herald Co.)

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The announcement that the British fleet is to visit the Baltic and the idea—whether it be correct or not—that this visit has some connection with the recent meeting between the czar and the German emperor, combined with a less confident feeling concerning the prospects of the approaching peace conference, have checked the advance in the prices of securities and brought about another period of inactivity.

The stock markets opened on Monday with a continuation of the improvement with which the preceding week closed, but the upward movement was not sustained, for the statements which the czar had been credited with making as to the term of a truce acceptable to Russia have dampened the ardor of the bulls. The feeling is certainly now growing stronger in the city that peace is not likely to result from the meeting of the plenipotentiaries. Thus the prevailing want of confidence makes the market sensitive.

The opinion is freely expressed now that business is bound to continue slack until the result of the peace conference is known, but there are those who refuse to allow their optimism to be checked, and the Statist is one organ which as usual takes the most cheerful view of the situation.

It argues it was only to be expected that M. Witte would not speak very hopefully of the prospects of peace, because "naturally he desires to obtain the best possible terms for Russia, and had he spoken differently he would probably have been charged with having injured the interests of his country. Notwithstanding the statements of the Russian delegate we still are very hopeful that peace is near."

After the terrible period of depression, the Statist believes that, following a peace settlement, a period of universal activity must ensue. "Were peace declared," it says, "there can be no doubt great activity would return to the markets and trade would receive a great stimulus by reason of the increased confidence that would result."

Interest in American rails has shown distinct signs of waning in spite of some show of strength made on your side of the Atlantic, and lately the investing public declines to come in.

The gamble in South American and other foreign railway issues continues unchecked, though signs of manipulation are beginning to be just a little too obvious to folk who understand how these things are done.

In the home railway market it has been a week of mild surprises. For the greater part of the week it has been particularly inactive and more especially depressed than most other sections of the house. If such a state of things could have been possible.

The money market has followed an irregular course this week for while at one time more than 2 per cent was paid for advances over night, the rate now is 1½ per cent both for short loans and for weekly fixtures.

LOW WATER INTERFERES.

Condition of River Prevents Movement of Coal in Harbor.

Low water in the local rivers continues to prevent the movement of any of the coal in the harbor. The Tom Reed returning from Cincinnati, tied up yesterday at Freedom and will remain there until there is sufficient water in the Ohio to make the trip to Pittsburgh safe.

The crews of the Iron Age, Coal City, Boaz and Dodsworth started from Cincinnati last night by rail. The four boats will stay at Cincinnati for several weeks to wait for empties. There is not enough water in the Ohio below Cincinnati for the navigation of heavy coal boats.

The Katherine returned to Pittsburgh yesterday from down stream, passing through the locks at Davis Island dam.

LOCKED UP AS WITNESS.

Man Who Claims Woman Stole Money from Him Is Held by the Police.

Neighbors complained of the racket made in the house of Bertha Frisby, 12 Carpenter's alley, and the woman was fined $100 and costs yesterday by Magistrate Moke on the charge of keeping a disorderly house. Eight visitors each paid $4.40. Seventy-two prisoners appeared before Magistrate Moke. James Shields was fined $25 and costs for carrying a revolver and 50 cartridges.

The case of James Barefield against Marie Jones, whom he alleges took $20 from him in a Colwell street resort, was held over until this morning. Barefield was locked up as a witness.

Sights and Sounds of the Southwest

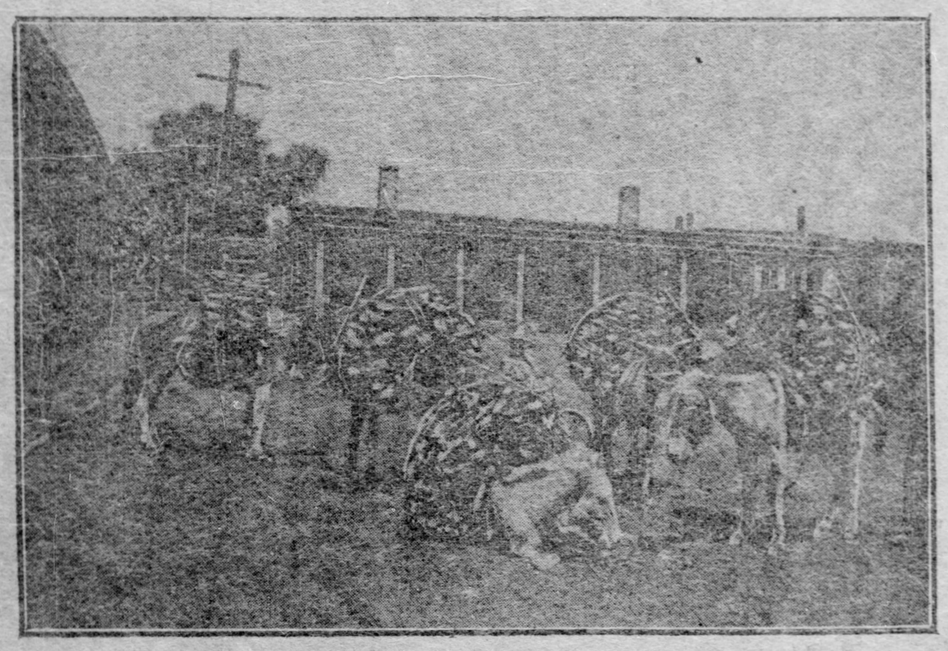
By CHARLES M. BREGG.



The Common Carriers of the Southwest.

SANTA FE, N. M., Aug. 2.—To say that railroads are the prophets of progress and civilization is not to say anything new. This they have always been, and one has only to spend some time in this great southwestern territory to discover how accurate is the figure of speech. Wherever the iron horse tracks his way across these limitless plains of the west, the land answers back to his call and becomes the home of industry—and the refuge for homeseekers. Nor do the railroads enter new territory or build up new sections simply for their health or in the interest of any philanthropic scheme of human charity. They are out for the profit—and while they are opening the way for the prosperity of others they are "accruing" dividends for stockholders.

My observation of transcontinental railroading, however, has led to the conclusion that the work to be done and the skill employed in order to preserve profit on the immense investment is hedged about with far greater hazard than the same enterprise encounters in the more thickly populated east, where topography, geography, climate and all the ordinary difficulties of railroading are of less complex and varied character. To run trains from 200 to 300 miles over a well blocked division through a country of normal topography is one thing, and to run them successfully 4,000 miles through a country hostile on every side to the service is quite another.

In my various wanderings through our western country I have been angered, disgusted, stirred to profound admiration and moved to deep sympathy all within an hour by a contemplation of and experience with the railroad management. At first the delay of trains from one to 18 hours was a source of annoyance and disgust. Then, too, the slow schedule of some of the trains called "limited" astonished and provoked me. Experience with some of the stupendous difficulties of transcontinental railroading has brought saner judgment and more patience and admiration.

Nature Is in the Way.

On a previous journey through the southwest I encountered some of the difficulties under which one road, the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, labors in transporting passengers and freight from the east through the plains of Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Texas and California to the Pacific coast. Nature out here is not a thing of peaceful or normal moods. Nor are road lines possible in all cases along level or protected stretches. Here the locating engineer must choose the lesser of several evils. The choice sometimes proves the greater evil and then the unhappy railroad management is in for it. Down through Arizona last summer the Santa Fe railroad found itself in a continuous performance battle with the elements. With a roadbed built through canyons, the only available route was sometimes across the sluices in the mountains. When the phenomenal cloudbursts came the bridges or fills across these sluices were like so many piles of straw. There was no alternative but to rebuild the destroyed roadbed and trust to luck that it would stay there. Last summer it didn't "stay there" over 12 hours at a time for several weeks, and the result was the hapless railroad was rebuilding itself day after day, while passengers were either delayed or sent over the tracks of a neighboring company.

The Santa Fe railroad has spent, and is still spending, millions of dollars through New Mexico, Arizona and California to avert these seemingly unavoidable catastrophies of nature. I was astonished as I came over the lines last week to note the latest efforts the road is making to establish a line away from the reach of hostile natural forces. In Shoemaker canyon, for example, in the western part of the territory, the road bed is being transferred fully a mile above its present course for a distance of 20 miles or more. The original lines were laid along the canyon stream, but nature soon taught how treacherous she could be and flood and washouts kept the railroad company always in water, which, if not hot naturally, was, metaphorically, beyond the boiling point.

This same road is also completing a gigantic "cut off" in the southern part of the territory that is intended as an outlet for its heavy traffic over a route less beset by difficulties. Belen is the western terminus of this "cut off" and when it is completed the entire business of moving Santa Fe traffic will be rearranged through the two territories of New Mexico and Arizona.

Railroads and Prosperity.

It is upon this ceaseless activity in railroad building that the prosperity of these vast territorial plains depends in no small measure. Striking instances of the influence railroads have upon the growth of a section is seen in the present prospects of a new metropolis in New Mexico, this time in the far northwest, at Farmington, a little insular settlement a few years ago, but now destined to eclipse the glory of even Albuquerque, the acknowledged metropolis of New Mexico. The capital of the territory is hurt by a lack of through railway service. With her almost ideal climate, her quaint historical interest and her beauty of mountain and mesa, Santa Fe should be the center of New Mexican progress, but it is at the capital that one finds the wheels of real progress turning with least motion.

The native Mexican, I believe, lacks progressive spirit. At least, it is where the American is in the ascendancy that we find the surest signs of progress. I am told by well-informed observers that the Mexican will move if he have sufficiently persuasive leadership. Here in Santa Fe, he evidently lacks leadership, for while he is moving it seems to be backward. The non-progressiveness of the native is most apparent in little things. He uses the same means of transportation that his ancestors used. I am sending you a reproduction of a scene that is so familiar in Santa Fe and throughout the southwest as to call for no comment by those who live here. The burro is the wagon, carriage, train, automobile and engine of the Mexican. He hauls wood on his back, rides him, even though rider is sometimes nearly twice the size of ridden, drives him in state to his buggy or rickety spring wagon and uses him as a general "hewer of wood and drawer of water."

Yesterday, watching one of these almost ceaseless processions of ladened burros, I was struck with an altogether new phase of the relation between the burro and the Mexican. From long observation I had come to believe that toward the burro the native held a deep-seated hatred that found expression in constant acts of cruelty. I have seen the Mexican boys and men treat their poor little disconsolate brutes with a ferocity of treatment that would make a Pittsburgh agent for the S. P. C. A. turn green with rage. A swarthy little Mexican driving a long string of ladened burros who stopped under the shade of a cottonwood and carried a dilapidated hat full of cool water to a panting burro, and affectionately rub his nose and for a moment "stood under" the beasts of burden, led me to believe that kindness to burros may even dwell in this Nazareth of habitual cruelty.

Politics and Pudding.

Next to the burro I believe the politician is the most ubiquitous thing in New Mexico. Men down here take to politics as an antidote for altitude and an absence of the wilder forms of dissipation in the effete east. Or should I say "milder" forms, for politics out here are pretty red hot stuff. If there is a vacancy in any office, no matter how small, territorial or county, the wheels begin to buzz and there is a fierce scramble from Raton to Izleta. I believe this never-ending grafting is a curse to the territory. Men are being taken care of in offices whose sole devotion to state is wrapped up in the loaves and fishes.

Of course in all the political hurly-burly the question of statehood is the one chief bone of contention. New Mexicans are greatly divided on the subject, but I believe the majority sentiment is against joint statehood with Arizona, while the opposition to the proposed act combining the two territories is so strong in the latter territory that I do not believe the concurring legislature could be obtained even should congress pass the law. New Mexico really needs more independent, progressive, patriotic spirit, and less shyster politics in which the often unqualified native figures to greater political injury than even the colored vote in the south.

The second term of Gov. Otero expires January 1 next, and there is already active discussion of his possible successor. Otero is a candidate to succeed himself, but there is doubt that he will be given a "third term." One of the strongest candidates and a man of undoubted qualification is Nicholas Galles, a pioneer mining explorer and a man of fine character and deep devotion to the welfare of the territory.

It is gratifying to find the "young American" in evidence here politically. Gov. Otero is of Spanish antecedents, but he is American in his patriotism and education. Secretary of State Reynolds is a young westerner from Iowa. I believe Surveyor General Llewellyn is also an "easterner" and a young man.

Bullet Hole Through His Head.

During my wanderings through the Indian villages I came across a red man who presents an interesting physical and racial study. His name I will not attempt to write down. He is a Taos medicine man and is perhaps the only man living with the hole of a pistol ball through his head. The entering hole is in the back of the head at the base of the skull just at the edge of his back hair. It seems that the gentle doctor got mixed up in some sort of a feud with some fellow medicine men. In the melee he managed to cut short the career of both his professional rivals, but before his departure to the happy hunting grounds one of them bored this hole through the survivor's head. That he is a survivor is wonderful enough, for by all the laws of human anatomy that big ugly bullet ploughed a track through the territory supposed to be inhabited by the doctor's brains. Neither he nor his brains were greatly inconvenienced by the incident, however, for when he was placed on trial in the courts of Santa Fe, Doctor Tesuque undertook to conduct his own case, and did it so successfully that he is now a free citizen, engaged in practicing his gentle art of healing at the same old stand, fourth dugout back from Central Boulevard, Taos Indian village, New Mexico.

I am told that the speech of the prisoner at the murder trial was a beautiful and moving piece of oratory, the logic of which was contained in the irrefutable statements that as his antagonists were both dead his punishment could not in anyway benefit or please them, so he should be allowed to go.

I find most of the Indians in the pueblos of a harmless, lazy type. The group I send is a snapshot of some well-balanced, Americanized San Juan Indians. The lady with the straw hat in her hand is quite a belle, I am told.

The Indian fiestas, or festivals, begin usually in the latter part of July and extend through August. They include various celebrations from the wholly religious observances of the Catholic Christianized tribes to the fiendish and repulsive snake dances of the Moki Indians in Arizona. One of the most interesting ceremonies of this kind is the annual fiesta of the Pueblos at Santa Clara, an account of which I hope to send you later.

Inspector M. E. Bailey of the Fourth Police district, left last night on his vacation, which he will spend in the Allegheny mountains. Capt. Robert Emmett will fill the inspector's place during his absence.

Coyne's Foot in the Way.

Mrs. Julia Lutzi, aged 18, of 23 Boundary street, made an information yesterday at No. 4 police station against John Coyne, charging assault. Mrs. Lutzi says she was walking along Boundary street when Coyne, who was sitting on a doorstep, threw out his foot and tripped her. Her face was badly bruised by coming in contact with the pavement.

Workman Falls from Frick Building.

Daniel Jannon, aged 26, of 88 Brownsville avenue, employed at the new Frick building, fell off a ladder yesterday morning. He struck the ground on his head and hands. Both wrists were badly sprained, his left side bruised and his forehead cut. He walked to the Homeopathic hospital, and after his injuries were attended started to his home.

Patrol Wagon Breaks Down.

The patrol wagon of No. 4 station, while taking four prisoners to jail at noon yesterday, broke down at Moultrie and Forbes streets. The rear axle split in pieces and the two rear wheels shot across and down Forbes street at a lively rate. No. 2 patrol wagon was telephoned for and the prisoners were carried to their destination.

The hunt consists of selecting four words from the advertisements appearing in next Sunday's issue of The Pittsburgh Gazette.

In selecting such words you are privileged to use each letter of the alphabet four times, but no more.

Each letter of the alphabet has a value in points, according to its location in the alphabet. For example, A is one point; B, two points, C, three points, etc. This would make the letter Z count twenty-six points.

The persons selecting the four words aggregating the greatest number of points (on the basis described above) will receive the prizes. We give below examples to demonstrate the difference in value of words. Take the word "Furniture."

6—21—18—14—9—20—21—18—5
F—U—R—N—I—T—U—R—E

It contains nine letters and represents 132 points, whereas, you take the word "Handkerchief."

8—1—14—4—11—5—13—2—8—9—5—6
H—A—N—D—K—E—R—C—H—I—E—F

It contains twelve letters, which only represent 92 points.

Answers must give the words selected, explain from what ad. they were taken and where the ad. is located in the paper. This is necessary to properly check the answers.

LIST OF CASH PRIZES

|---|---|---|
| First Prize | | $15.00 |
| Second " | | 10.00 |

After each word must be given the number of points it represents; at the bottom of the sheet the total of the points represented in the four words. Sign your name and address plainly.

Should two or more contestants be tied for certain prizes, such prizes will be distributed pro rata among such contestants.

Every person is eligible to enter the Hunt except employes of The Pittsburgh Gazette and members of their families.

All answers must be sent in on the blank form provided in The Sunday Gazette.

No contestant will be awarded more than one prize.

All answers must be in The Gazette office by 9:00 a. m. of the following Thursday.

Answers must be addressed to Manager "Word Hunt," The Gazette, Pittsburgh, Pa., and either sent by mail or delivered in person at our Business Office.

Any answer which does not comply strictly to the foregoing rules will not be considered.

Any points not covered in the above rules will be decided in an equitable manner by the Sunday Editor of The Gazette and the Manager of this contest.

NOTICE—The Manager of the Hunt reserves the right to make any changes in the rules that he may deem necessary for properly conducting the contest. Be sure to read the rules next Sunday.
